Report says Reagan not aware of diversion

Draft document states president sought release of hostages

The Associated Press

At a glance — A6

WASHINGTON — A draft report by the Senate Intelligence Committee contains no evidence that President Reagan knew about the diversion of money from arms sales to Iran to Nicaragua's Contra rebels, NBC News reported Thursday night.

But contrary to President Reagan's assertion that he was not swapping arms for hostages, the report says that Reagan authorized resumption of arms shipments to Iran in January, 1986, with the understanding that all U.S. hostages would be released, or there would be no more shipments, the network reported.

While it pulled together many elements of the controversy that previously had been revealed by individual legislators or in news reports, the report, based only on interviews conducted so far, contained no startling new revelations.

And it was lacking in many essential details about what happened to proceeds from the sale and whether any of the money ever actually went to the Contras.

NBC said the report drew a picture of an administration that was drawn deeper and deeper into the deal by the Iranians, who promised to set up high-level meetings aimed at freeing the hostages.

But the report, based only on interviews conducted so far, was lacking in many essential details about what happened to proceeds from the sale and whether any of the money ever actually went to the Contras.

It also portrayed former National Security Adviser Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, and his fired aide, Lt. Col. Oliver North, as frequently acting on their own and misleading or ignoring their White House superiors.

The committee could not prove or disprove that North or Poindexter ever told the president that the Contras were being funded with the Iranian money, NBC said.

The report also quoted Deputy CIA Director Robert Gates as saying it had been his agency's policy not to even want to know about any diversion of funds, quoting him as saying, "If we even knew, we would be blamed for it."

The report was critical of CIA Director William Casey, saying he had been less than candid with the Intelligence Committee when he appeared before the panel last November.

The report also said that at one point Casey warned that revelations of the Iranian arms sales could be very damaging and that if disclosed publicly they should be portrayed as a political attempt to reach out to moderates in Iran. As it turned out, that was the tack adopted by the administration.

The report indicates Casey had been aware of the possibility of the funds diversion as early as Oct. 7, 1986, several days earlier than he had contended.

The report describes Reagan as seeming surprised when told that money from the deal had been diverted to Central America, NBC said.

Immediately after the report was aired, the White House — which for days had pressed for release of the report — issued a statement saying

President Reagan shouts reply to reporter's question

Dow pushes past 2,000 mark

The Associated Press

NEW YORK — The stock market kept climbing Thursday, pushing the Dow Jones industrial average past 2,000 for the first time as Wall Street's powerful early-1987 rally continued.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 8.30 to 2,002.25, bringing its gain in the five sessions since New Year's to 106.30 points.

That marked a new milestone for a bull market that began with the average at 776.92 in August, 1982, and added an extra flourish to a broad-based advance of late that has surprised and impressed even Wall Street's most ardent optimists.

"When you look at how far we've come since August of 1982, it's spectacular," said Robert Stovall, president of Stovall-Twenty-First Advisers Inc. With the Dow Jones industrials breaking 2,000, Stovall said, "it's going to attract more attention than ever before."

Following the pattern of the first four sessions of 1987, the market showed broad-based strength in Thursday's trading. Over the past trading week prices of smaller secondary stocks have risen even more sharply than the blue chips in the Dow.

Many of these lesser issues have been rebounding from a poor showing in the second half of 1986, when they attracted little attention and were hit by tax-motivated selling as the year drew to a close.

Aside from its psychological effects, professionals in the investment world do not attach much importance to the Dow 2,000 mark, from the viewpoint of either economic or technical analysts.

Nevertheless, Thursday's closing number served to emphasize the progress the market has made in recent years. It came only 13 months after the average first reached 1,500, in December 1985.

On the New York Stock Exchange Thursday, volume totaled 194.52 million shares, up from 190.87 million the day before.

Bank stocks were strong, with J.P. Morgan up 3⅛ at 92¾; Chase Manhattan up 1¼ at 39¼; Chemical New York up 1⅛ at 45⅝; Citicorp up ⅝ at 56½, and Manufacturers Hanover up ½ at 47¾.

But some big-name industrial issues didn't participate in the general advance. International Business Machines slipped ¾ to 122¾, and American Telephone & Telegraph lost ¼ to 25½.

USX was actively traded, down ¾ at 22. Financier Carl Icahn said he dropped his bid to acquire

Set to saddle up, Reagan at home

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Reagan returned from the hospital to a hero's welcome Thursday and predicted he'll soon be saddling up to go horseback riding despite his bout with prostate surgery.

Cheering admirers, many of them White House employees, held up hand-made signs with such messages as "My Hero!" and "Go Get 'Em" as the president's helicopter set down on the lawn of the executive mansion after a short flight from Bethesda Naval Hospital in suburban Maryland.

Presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said Reagan would meet with aides in his residential quarters this week and would deliver his weekly radio address from there on Saturday.

When in Washington, Reagan normally makes the radio speech from the Oval Office. Speakes said the president is expected to resume a schedule in the Oval Office next week and be fully recovered in about six weeks.

At Bethesda, where he had been a patient since Sunday, Reagan walked along a row of uniformed Navy men and women and shook hands before boarding his helicopter in crisp, sunny weather.

"I feel great," he said.

Asked whether he was ready to go back to work, the president, who met with advisers while in the hospital, said: "Of course. I haven't stopped."

The crowd burst into cheers as the president stepped from the helicopter and walked toward a White House entrance with first lady Nancy Reagan at his side.

"What do you do for an encore?" a reporter called out.

"An appendectomy," the grinning president replied.

The next question was when he expected to get back to horseback riding, one of his favorite forms of recreation.

"Pretty soon," he answered. "It's got to get a little warmer."

Speakes said Reagan's doctors had advised him to avoid heavy lifting, wood chopping, horseback riding or other strenuous exercise during the six-week recovery period. He said he did not know whether the president would make his usual February trip to his ranch near Santa Barbara, Calif., where he often chops wood and rides.

Reagan's physicians said he had no evidence of cancer and called his recovery from Monday's surgery "excellent in every respect."

Almost a third of Americans in 25-44 age group

Baby Boomers dominate population

By RANDOLPH SCHMID
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The Baby Boom generation that seemed to dominate the nation as children and teen-agers now constitutes nearly one-third of America's population as it nears middle age, the Census Bureau reported Thursday.

"The 17.6 percent increase in the 25-44 age group makes it the fastest growing age segment of the population of the 1980s," the bureau said.

The group comprised 73.8 million people as of July 1, 1985, or 30.9 percent of the population, according to the new Census report, "State Population and Household Estimates to 1985, with Age and Components of Change."

Although the bureau last month issued new national and state population totals for 1986, the year-earlier figures in the just-released study are the most current estimates broken down by age group.

America's attention has focused on the children of the Baby Boom for many years as the offspring of the post-World War II era flooded the nation's schools and colleges and then poured into the job market.

By postponing their own marriages in pursuit of educations and careers they have helped create their own population bulge.

The Baby Boom was followed by a Baby Bust, when births fell sharply, and the new study noted that the 18-24 age group has been declining since 1981 as the Boomers aged and weren't replaced.

Between 1980 and 1985 the nation's population aged 18 to 24 fell by 5.1 percent, the study said.

But now that the Baby Boom generation is settling down in its prime childbearing years, it is producing what population experts call an echo effect — a jump in the number of births.

"Due to the large number of women in their childbearing years, the 18 million population under 5 is the highest level for this age group since 1967," the report noted.

Between 1980 and 1985 the pre-school population jumped by 10.3 percent, it said.

However, population researchers stress this is not another boom because the rate of births has not gone up. The increase, which they call an echo, occurs simply because having an increasing number of women in childbearing ages results in an increasing number of children,

Quasars form as galaxies collide, scientist believes

The Associated Press

PASADENA, Calif. — A group of heat-emitting star systems has been identified as the intermediate step in a process by which galaxies collide to create quasars, the universe's brightest objects, researchers said Thursday.

"We think we're seeing quasars in the early stages of formation," said astrophysicist David Sanders, of the California Institute of Technology. "These objects appear to have all the characteristics of quasars, except they're not yet shining brightly in visible light wavelengths."

The 10 dust-enshrouded, heat-emitting star systems, known as ultraluminous infrared galaxies, appear to have been formed by the gravity-caused collision of spiral galaxies. That suggests such collisions are "the only mechanism by which you can get quasars," Sanders said during the American Astronomical Society's annual meeting.

The theory that galactic collisions form quasars is well-accepted, but Caltech's research is significant because it identifies the infrared galaxies as an intermediate step in quasar formation, said society spokesman Steve Maran, a senior scientist for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Crated debris from shuttle lowered into old missile silo

Wreckage in storage

Challenger takes its final journey

The Associated Press

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Nearly a year after the space shuttle Challenger exploded, workers Thursday began the task of storing the wreckage in old missile silos and abandoned underground buildings near the launch site.

A large crane lowered crates containing pieces of the orbiter through an opening in the roof of one of the buildings after two flatbed trucks transported the first load of debris to the deactivated Minuteman missile test site.

The orbiter and payload wreckage will be stowed in the four buildings. Later, pieces of the external fuel tank and the solid fuel booster rocket casings will be lowered into the two 78-foot-deep silos.

The wreckage, recovered from the Atlantic Ocean, had been laid out in three buildings where it was examined by accident experts for clues to the explosion that wracked the shuttle 73 seconds after liftoff on Jan. 28, 1986. Before it was packed, technicians had carefully cataloged every chunk.

The explosion killed all seven crew members. Investigators placed the blame on a faulty joint between segments of one of the booster rockets.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced in October that it planned to use the Minuteman facility, which includes four equipment and electrical supply buildings, to store the Challenger wreckage. It is located at Cape Canaveral Air Force Station, five miles from the shuttle launch area.

The facility has been idle since the Minuteman research program ended in 1970.

Officials said it would take about 2½ months to complete the transfer of the 235,480 pounds of debris. When the job is done, 10,000-pound concrete caps will seal the silos and the buildings will be securely locked.

The smaller shuttle parts are packed in 102 crates measuring 64 or 32 cubic feet each. Larger pieces are stored on pallets. Each package is carefully marked so that parts can be retrieved if they are needed in connection with litigation or further investigation.

The storage was delayed until the plan was reviewed by the Justice Department and NASA's general counsel. Attorneys wanted to study litigation related to the accident before approving the plan.

Nuclear experts say Israeli's statement on weapons right

WASHINGTON (AP) — American nuclear experts give credence to the statements of a former Israeli technician that indicate Israel's atomic weapons are far more numerous and powerful than previously thought.

Mordechai Vanunu has recounted in great detail information gleaned during his nine years working in an underground uranimum-processing facility at Israel's nuclear reactor in Dimona in the remote Negev desert.

During four weeks of interviews with the Sunday Times of London, Vanunu described a clandestine Israeli nuclear capacity that went beyond the estimates of the world's scientific community, according to Ted Taylor, a leading U.S. nuclear weapons designer before his retirement.

Israeli officials have not denied Vanunu's statements.

While Taylor and other U.S. and British nuclear specialists say they generally believe Vanunu, they caution that they cannot be certain that everything Vanunu said is true or that the photographs he provided are actually from Dimona.

Taylor, who examined the photos and read the transcripts of Vanunu's talks with British physicists, said, "I found that his description of what was there was internally consistent and that the words and the photographs entirely tracked."

Leonard S. Spector, author of the "The New Nuclear Nations" and a fellow at the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, said Vanunu's technical knowledge buttresses his account.

Frank Barnaby, a British nuclear weapons scientist, said after interviewing Vanunu during two days for the Times of London that: "His testimony is totally convincing."

Vanunu, 32, whose motives in speaking to the Times appear to be at least in part financial, disappeared from England in early October as the story was going to press. He showed up in Israeli custody, claiming he was seized against his will from an airport in Italy. On the basis of what Vanunu told the London newspaper and the photographs he gave it, Israeli authorities charged him with espionage and aiding an enemy in wartime.

Vanunu said he worked in a section of the Dimona plant known as Machon 2, a factory with six levels underground. He said the plant was used to process uranium to extract plutonium, which was then used to make nuclear weapons. He said he was dismissed in November 1985 as part of a cost-cutting drive.

According to his account, Israel has greatly expanded an experimental reactor, secretly built for Israel by the French in 1957-1964, using it produce 88 pounds of plutonium a year, enough to build 10 bombs. The plant uses much more advanced technology to extract plutonium than methods used by other countries early in their nuclear programs.

The Times, in the Oct. 5 article on Vanunu's claims, did not attribute to Vanunu an estimate of Israel's nuclear arsenal. Instead, it sought out nuclear scientists who, it said, estimated Israel's inventory at 100 to 200 weapons. The specialists based their projections on Vanunu's description of the plant and its capability and his photographs.

U.S. government analyses made before Vanunu's disclosures had put the number of Israeli nuclear weapons at about 40, said a Reagan administration official, who described the estimate of 200 as "way high."

Taylor said the figure of 200 could be obtained only by assuming that the Dimona plant produced plutonium for 20 years at the same high rate that Vanunu described for recent years.

Taylor also said that the advanced design of bomb models photographed by Vanunu meant that Israel could produce more sophisticated bombs than supposed, using smaller amounts of plutonium, and that more bombs could therefore be made.

Spector wrote in his 1985 book that Israel had 20 to 25 nuclear weapons, but he said he now believes, based on Vanunu's information, that Israel likely owns at least 100.

The United States and Soviet Union have about 27,000 nuclear weapons each, Britain has 700, France 500 and China 300. No other nations have acknowledged publicly that they possess nuclear weapons, but India is thought by experts to have prepared nuclear components capable of being fashioned quickly into an undetermined number of weapons.

For political reasons, neither U.S. nor Israeli officials publicly acknowledge that Israel is a nuclear power.

Admission that Israel has the bomb would pose severe problems for the U.S. government.

Stallings seeks 65 mph limit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Richard Stallings, D-Idaho, says he has been promised consideration of his efforts to amend the highway bill to allow a 65 mph speed limit on rural interstate highways.

Thursday, Stallings tried to get the House Rules Committee to amend the highway bill. The committee later voted against allowing any amendments to the bill, but Stallings said he was promised hearings later on the speed limit issue.

Stallings said he suggested a five-year demonstration period if the speed limit is raised, allowing highway officials to monitor whether higher speeds lead to more highway accidents.

Symms balks at part of budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, says he supports the administration budget in general, but opposes at least two parts of it.

Symms said Thursday he cannot support a request for a $300 million supplemental appropriation for U.S. contributions to international development banks. He said the banks make loans to foreign nations producing agricultural and mineral commodities in direct competition with U.S. industry and often already in surplus.

Symms also said he opposes changing the formula by which federal timber revenue is shared with Idaho counties because it could cause a devastating loss in federal revenue to some.

Ski patrolman dug out of snow

SNOWBIRD, Utah (AP) — A ski patrolman testing for avalanches at Snowbird Ski Resort escaped serious injury after he triggered a 40-foot slide and was dug out of it within minutes by fellow patrol members, authorities said.

Jim Collinson, 30, of Sandy, was skiing through a closed stretch of the resort's Peruvian Gulch area on Thursday in a technique designed to cause an avalanche without the use of explosives, said John Loomis, assistant mountain manager.

Collinson was taken to Alta View Hospital, where he was treated and released the same afternoon, said hospital spokesman Brent Lawrence.

Engine for pump arrives today

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The first of three 75-ton engines which will pump water from the Great Salt lake into the Western desert is to arrive in Salt Lake City this afternoon, officials say.

The 3,500-horsepower natural gas-powered engine is due to be delivered at the Division of Water Resources building parking lot, said division spokesman Ron Ollis.

Hank Dinez, project coordinator for Ingersoll-Rand, the New York company building the engines, said the engine is to be transported to Lakeside Sunday. It will then be ferried by truck Monday across the Southern Pacific Railroad causeway to Hogup Ridge, 12 miles west of Lakeside.

Report

the report "will underscore the fact that the president knew absolutely nothing about the diversion of funds from Iran to the Contras and that no such policy was ever approved by the president."

Dan Howard, a White House spokesman, added: "The White House does not have a copy of the report and therefore it is difficult to respond to questions on its contents. It is essential that the full report be made available to the public rather than selected details. The report should be released immediately."

Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., chairman of the Intelligence Committee, issued a statement saying "I want to make it clear that the draft staff report which was inappropriately leaked to the press today was never adopted by the committee."

He reiterated that the panel will continue to review the data it collected during a month-long investigation and put together a new version which he hoped could be released next week.

"Since this draft staff report, which the committee did not adopt, was prepared in great haste — not even finished in time to allow members of the committee to read — we hope to make a thorough search of all of the documents and testimony presented to our committee, to put together a fair and accurate report," Boren said.

White House officials were familiar with the contents of the report, however. At least four administration officials — two from the White House counsel's office, one from the National Security Council and one from the CIA — had been shown the entire document last week to allow them to screen it for disclosures that might damage intelligence gathering.

Senate Democrats complained earlier this week that the report had been "sanitized" by administration officials, and the report given to NBC did include blacked-out sections.

The report said that in September, 1985, North asked Charles Allen, a senior CIA official, for stepped-up intelligence data on Iranian arms broker Manucher Ghorbanifar and other Iranians, the network reported. Two months later the CIA was involved in flying arms from Israel to Iran, it said.

The report says that in December, 1985, after the arms shipments had begun, Secretary of State George Shultz, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and then-National Security Adviser Robert McFarlane were unhappy with the performance of Iranian middlemen in the deal and recommended that it be canceled.

But North later wrote a memo saying, "If the program is terminated, then the hostages will die."

Sen. David Durenberger has said that is about the time — January, 1986 — when Amiram Nir, the antiterrorism aide to Israeli Prime Minister Shimon Peres, became involved and persuaded the administration to continue the shipments.

North then brought in retired Air Force Maj. Gen. Richard Secord to help with the shipments, the report said. Secord already was involved in private efforts to resupply the Contras.

The report says Ghorbanifar suggested to his CIA contact in March, 1986, that money from the arms sales be diverted to the Contras.

NBC said the report contained circumstantial evidence and the testimony of Regan and Attorney General Edwin Meese III that the diversion of funds was North's idea.

NBC said the report describes an April 4, 1986, memo written by North and found in his White House safe describing a plan for diverting $12 million to the Contras.

Poindexter, who is portrayed in the report as more than a passive bystander, could have seen the memo but there was no evidence that he did, the network reported. Poindexter at least had early suspicions that Iranian arms money was being skimmed off, but failed to act, the report said.

On Oct. 1 the CIA's Allen became suspicious about the money diversion and Robert Gates, then the CIA deputy director. On Oct. 7, the two men briefed Casey, and two days later Casey and Gates asked North about it. The report says North denied any funds diversion, but did mention a Swiss bank account.

When White House Chief of Staff Donald Regan confronted Poindexter on Nov. 24 of last year about the deal and asked how he could have allowed it to happen, Poindexter reportedly said he felt sorry for the Contras, NBC said.

Casey had on Nov. 16 suggested that Poindexter get the White House counsel to investigate the Contra money, Poindexter replied that he could not trust the counsel's office to keep things quiet, the network said.

The report, according to NBC, underscores Secretary of State Shultz's lack of knowledge of the arms sales. When Shultz learned in April 1986 that an arms sale might be in the works, he asked Poindexter about it and was told there was no such plan, the report said.

And, even though Shultz attended a White House meeting on Jan. 7, 1986 — the day after Reagan signed the order authorizing arms sales to Iran — he was not told of the order, the network said.

Boomer

even when birth rates stay low.

The Baby Boomers are bracketed by small population groups.

In addition to the Baby Bust following them through life, they are being preceeded by that small generation born during the Great Depression and World War II.

Because of the low birth rates in those years, "growth in the middle-aged population (45 to 64) remains slow," the Census study reported, increasing less than 1 percent between 1980 and 1985.

That is an age group that will shortly begin to enlarge, however, as the Baby Boomers age.

And the elderly are already booming on their own — largely thanks to improved medical care that has added to lifespans and kept more Americans alive into their mature years.

"The population 65 and over grew by almost 3 million (11.7 percent) to 28.5 million and now represents 12 percent of the nation's total population. Every state shared in this growth," the new report said.

Definitions of the Baby Boom generation vary somewhat. Most population experts, however, consider it to be that group of Americans born in the 15 or 80 years after World War II, from when the birth rate jumped in 1945-46 until the rate gradually diminished in the early 1960s.

the company, but may consider a proxy fight for seats on its board of directors.

Energy stocks, which have been buoyed lately by a recovery in world oil prices, were mostly higher again. Atlantic Richfield gained 1⅝ to 65⅛; Chevron 1⅛ to 48⁵⁄₁₆, and Occidental Petroleum 1 to 30.

Advancing issues outnumbered declines by more than 2 to 1 in the overall tally on the Big Board, with 1,159 up, 499 down and 351 unchanged. The exchange's composite index rose 1.12 to 147.55.

Nationwide turnover in NYSE-listed issues, including trades in those stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 237.07 million shares.

Standard & Poor's index of 400 industrials gained 2.05 to 286.79, and S&P's 500-stock composite index was up 1.95 at 257.28.

The NASDAQ composite index for the over-the-counter market jumped 5.05 to 377.54. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index closed at 281.65, up 2.79.

Timber industry making small profits

BOISE (AP) — Idaho timber industry leaders said Thursday their sector has finally turned the corner to regain its economic health although they conceded the industry will never employ as many workers as it did at its peak eight years ago.

"For Idaho mills," Forest Industry Council chief Joe Hinson said, "1986 saw the end of financial losses within this industry and the return of marginal profitability."

But Hinson's comments to the Joint House-Senate Revenue Projection Committee were the first the panel has received that contained some real optimism about an Idaho industry's future.

A parade of industry officials and economic analysts has otherwise been relatively pessimistic about the outlook for the coming year, offering at best a prediction that it will be no worse than the past year that saw Idaho record its first decline in population in over two decades.

Among the key parts of those various forecasts were another loss of jobs, further erosion of personal income to inflation and continued outmigration.

Based on those projections, the committee must come up with an estimate of what the state's basic tax structure will generate in revenue for the budget year that begins July 1. Cochairman Don Loveland, R-Boise, speculated that the recommendation will call for little, if any, increase in tax revenues from the current year.

The state Division of Financial Management, which will present Democratic Gov. Cecil Andrus's revenue estimate next week, issued its overall economic forecast, agreeing with most of the other analysts that significant growth in the Idaho economy is out of the question for the near future.

Even Andrus's new Commerce Department director, James Hawkins, acknowledged that the loss of population and jobs last year coupled with continued problems in agriculture and mining have created major concerns about the future.

"We are obviously losing our population base because jobs are not available in Idaho," Hawkins told the committee.

But in urging lawmakers to make the financial commitment Andrus will request for education, economic development and other critical prgrams, He added, "We're going to turn this around ... The opportunities for a positive change are in our favor."

In the last two days, he said, three different companies have indicated an interest in locating projects in Idaho worth over $50 million and creating more than 250 jobs, but their final decision apparently rests with the legislative response to the Andrus request for an investment in the state.

The latest state economic forecast was dark, predicting that international economic conditions will continue thwarting Idaho's cornerstone industries.

"Agricultural prices are forecast to rise by less than 2 percent," it said. "Fertilizer and metal prices may climb by less than 3.5 percent. In spsite of the tariff on Canadian imports, the projected slump in national housing will constrain prices on lumber and wood products to increases of only 3.5 percent."

The analysts also expressed serious concerns about demographic trends in the state.

"The birth rate in Idaho has dropped significantly during the present decade," they said. "Although there is a trend toward smaller families in the U.S., the sharpness of the decline in Idaho suggests that young couples may be leaving state in pursuit of gainful employment elsewhere."

Long-distance rates rise for calls across state

BOISE (AP) — It's going to cost more to make long-distance telephone calls in Idaho across the three separate service areas in the state.

The Public Utilities Commission on Thursday approved a $1.5 million increase in AT&T Communication rates for intrastate long distance calls. The increases go into effect Jan. 19.

The higher rates apply only to calls made between the southern Idaho service area operated by Mountain Bell, and other service areas operated in Idaho by Pacific Northwest Bell and General Telephone.

Rates or long-distance calls of 55 miles or less will go up about 52 percent. Rates for calls more than 55 miles will increase up to 10 percent depending on the distance.

Toll discounts for off-peak calling will drop. The 40 percent discount for evening calls will fall to 35 percent. The night-weekend discount will go from 60 percent to 50 percent.

Evening discounts apply from 5-11 p.m. Sunday through Friday and on holidays. Night and weekend rates apply from 11 p.m.-8 a.m. daily and from 8 a.m. Saturday to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Power companies hope new rules won't generate a lot of duplication

BOISE (AP) — Two large area utilities say they hope new state dam safety regulations won't mean needless duplication between federal and state rules.

Extra cost caused by excessive regulation only will be passed on to consumers, said Jodi Williams, an attorney for Utah Power and Light Co.

She and others testified here Thursday at a hearing on proposed changes in the state's dam safety and inspection rules. The Department of Water Resources will accept written comment until Jan. 19, then will adopt or modify the proposals.

They go into effect 20 days later, but must go to the 1988 Idaho Legislature for review.

In was the second of two hearings. Hearing officer Norm Gray said a Tuesday session in Idaho Falls was attended only by a handful of people and drew testimony from only one witness. About 20 people attended the Boise hearing Thursday.

Young said the state's dam safety rules haven't been changed since 1969. The new regulations make it clear that existing dams, as well as new ones, must meet the regulations; change spillway design requirements, and specify that large dams above "high risk" areas must be operated in such a way as to control the risk of downstream flooding.

Idaho Power Co. spokesman John Harrington said the company's 11 dams already are tightly regulated by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission. Making the utility comply with duplicating state standards "could be a waste of both government and our assets," he said.

Idaho Power is suggesting that all federally regulated dams should be exempt from the new rules "to eliminate unnecessary duplication in legislative oversight," he said.

Idaho Power will submit more extensive written comments later, he said.

Ms. Williams said all of UP&L's hydroelectric dams are in Idaho, and all but two are covered by federal regulations. She said it appears most of the conflict with the new regulations will come from older dams, but urged consideration of the dams' operating history.

Even though some of Utah Power and Light's dams are 80 to 90 years old, she said, they already have withstood major floods.

"When costs are incurred (to meet new rules) they are passed along to consumers," Ms. Williams said. "When there is duplication of regulation, there is duplication of cost."

House shifts committee assignments

BOISE (AP) — The Idaho Legislature convenes on Monday, but the House of Representatives still is changing some of its committee assignments.

In changes announced Thursday, freshman Rep. W.O. "Bill" Taylor, R-Nampa, will not serve on the House Health and Welfare Committee, but instead will replace Rep. Jerry Deckard, R-Eagle, on Local Government. The Health and Welfare Committee will be cut from 15 members to 14.

Rep. Reed Hansen, R-Idaho Falls, will serve as vice chairman of that committee, instead of Rep. Robert Scates, R-Coeur d'Alene. Scates will be vice chairman of Education, instead of Rep. John Sessions, R-Driggs.

Rep. Tom Loertscher, R-Bone, will replace Rep. Jerry Callen, R-Jerome, on Education. Callen will serve on State Affairs.

Rep. Con Mahoney, R-Idaho Falls, has been assigned to the Local Government and Resources and Conservation committees. He was appointed to the Legislature after Idaho Falls Republican Linden Bateman resigned during th December organizing session.

Bateman was scheduled to serve on the same two committees, plus State Affairs.

Human rights a critical element in dealing with Kremlin

Morris B. Abram

Last month, as Andrei D. Sakharov was being released from exile, the Supreme Soviet issued a new decree restricting emigration.

How seriously should the West take these actions?

While waiting for the next chapter in the Sakharov saga to unfold, it would be useful to recall that all of the members of the Helsinki Monitoring Group — organized by human-rights activists to measure Moscow's compliance with the commitments that it made in the 1975 Helsinki accords — continue to languish in Soviet labor camps or Siberian exile or have managed to get out of the Soviet Union. The release of individual activists, eager as we are for their freedom, must be seen as a deception aimed at relieving pressure against the Soviets for their human-rights violations.

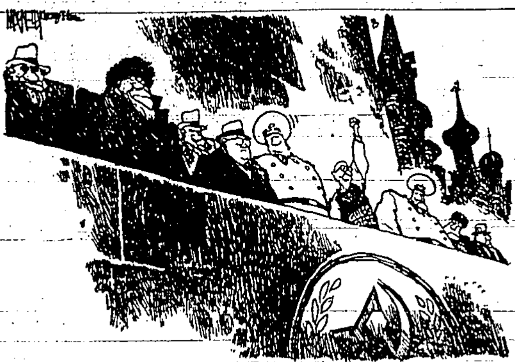
By the same token, the new immigration rules offer little hope that the Kremlin intends to reverse the sharp decline in the number of Jews permitted to emigrate — from 51,000 in 1979 to fewer than 900 in 1986. Nor have I heard anything at the 11-month Helsinki review conference, which began in Vienna in November and where I serve as a public member of the U.S. delegation, to persuade me that the Soviets have any intention of living up to their human-rights promises in Helsinki.

The new emigration rules are deeply disappointing. Especially troubling is the failure to recognize emigration as a right, making any application subject to Soviet whim. Equally depressing is the omission of any reference to repatriation, under which thousands of ethnic Germans and others have received permission to emigrate in recent years and which, if applied to Jews, could be used to justify large-scale departures to Israel.

Any future Jewish emigration now appears limited to family reunification, and here the new law actually is more restrictive than previous practice. The first step in the process is an invitation from a relative abroad. (About 400,000 such invitations have been sent to would-be Jewish emigrants still living in the Soviet Union.) Under the latest decree, such invitations now must come from immediate family members: parents, children, spouses and siblings. In the past, such invitations have been accepted from grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins. Now Soviet Jews without first-degree relatives abroad are barred from emigrating.

In addition to these restrictions, the newly promulgated regulations list no fewer than nine reasons for denying requests to emigrate. One of them is a catch-all provision that gives the authorities the right to reject applicants on grounds of "ensuring the protection of social order, health or the morals of the population" — language broad enough to refuse every prospective emigrant. If this were not serious enough, the new decree also bars emigration "if the person abroad extending the invitation has violated Soviet law" — an attempt to punish alleged lawbreakers who live outside the jurisdiction of Soviet authority by penalizing their relatives inside the workers' paradise.

Thus the decree is no "far-reaching" effort toward "serious reforms," as the Soviet foreign ministry claims, but rather a tightening of existing restrictive policies. At the same time, the harsh treatment of Jews who seek to teach Hebrew, or who have made public their frustrations at being rejected for emigration year after year — some of them for a decade or more — continues unabated. Despite the much-publicized release of dissident Anatoly Shcharansky, Sakharov and his wife, Yelena Bonner, we know that the number of Jewish prisoners of conscience in Soviet camps and jails has doubled since Mikhail S. Gorbachev came to power. Harassment and intimidation by the KGB are increasing. As the level of emigration falls to its lowest figure in 15 years, the pressures on Jews rise. They cannot live as Jews, and they cannot leave — and all the Soviet efforts at deceiving the West into believing that a new era has begun cannot change that fact.



"NO KIDDING, MIKE... WE'RE ALL DELIGHTED IT HELPED YOU IN THE POLLS, BUT I'M TELLING YOU, THE NEXT EXCHANGE PROGRAM WITH M.I.T. AND THIS SAKHAROV DUDE IS HISTORY."

In Vienna the Soviet line was that the numbers of the three main "baskets" that were adopted in Helsinki reflected their urgency and priority. Basket I deals with security and borders in Europe. Basket II deals with trade and commercial contacts. As far as the Soviet delegation is concerned, these items by far transcend the human-rights and family-reunification provisions of Basket III.

The American view, as expressed by Ambassador Warren Zimmerman, head of the U.S. delegation to the Helsinki review conference, is that all three baskets are of equal importance and stand in delicate balance with one another. Soviet performance in keeping its international human-rights commitments, Zimmerman argued, was essential to any hope of achieving agreement in matters of trade and — more important — security, which includes arms control.

If those in the Kremlin cannot be trusted to keep their word on human rights — as evidenced by their failure to honor their Helsinki commitments, which hardly affect their security — how can they be trusted on arms control, which so profoundly affects our security?

More than a few Americans, including members of the Senate, will ask this question when and if the day ever comes to ratify a treaty with the Kremlin that limits nuclear or conventional weapons as a means of preventing war. Human rights thus become a critical element, not a side-show as the Soviets claim them to be, in the development of understanding and trust between the two superpowers.

If the Soviets continue to reject the urgings of Western statesmen, led by President Reagan, to improve the way they treat their people and to open the gates of emigration, the chances of early progress in improving the atmosphere between Washington and Moscow are dreary indeed.

Morris B. Abram is the chairman of the Conference of Presidents of Major American Jewish Organizations and chairman of the National Conference on Soviet Jewry.

Competition doesn't always mean follow the leader blindly

Ellen Goodman

BOSTON — If you are keeping a life list of buzzwords, by now you have added "competitive" to the tally.

These days, every speech on the state of an American city, or state, corporation or mind has included at least one reference to the need to be "competitive" in the international marketplace.

The shadow competitors with whom we are competitive are, of course, Japanese, a people who have driven their economy past our own. We are now deeply into the unfamiliar and somewhat uncomfortable role of student, researching another country for tips about self-improvement. We are even, in this same competitive atmosphere, studying how the Japanese study. And teach and learn.

The newest report on the Japanese educational system released by the U.S. Department of Education this week was not commissioned out of some cross-cultural desire to learn other systems of teaching and raising children. It grew out of concern about the role education plays in this "competitive" mode.

Secretary of Education William Bennett puts it this way in his foreward: "Japanese education works." How do we know that? He opens his answer saying, ". . . It has been demonstrably successful in providing modern Japan with a powerfully competitive economy . . ." Here we go again.

We are in the great pattern of American educational reform. We go spasmodically from one crisis to another, rushing to extract lessons from a country that has "gotten ahead" of our own. Isao Amagi, the author of the polite companion study the Japanese did of our system, notes this wisely: "In the past they talked of a 'Sputnik shock.' Now maybe there's a 'Toyota shock' or a 'Japan shock.' "

In this country, a longtime watcher of Japanese education, William Cummings, says ruefully: "We're not looking at good schools as much as we're looking at powerful countries."

Well, what precisely do we learn from looking, at least looking at this report? By and large, things we already know about education. We learn that education works when parents are involved, when schools and society are clear about their purpose, when expectations of students are high, the schools are well-ordered, and teachers are accorded respect.

We also learn something the Japanese learned from us and we almost gave up on: It is possible to have equality AND excellence. As Bennett writes: "Our educational ideals are better realized on a large scale in Japan than observers have tended to realize."

This imported information is fine ammunition for educational reform. But there are also muted warnings from abroad. While we are looking to the Far East for a tougher model of discipline and mastery, the Japanese reformers are worrying that the rigidity and uniformity of their system has squelched creativity.

Americans are talking about tightening education; Japanese are talking about loosening it. We are worried about secondary-school performance; they are worrying about their traditional collegiate collapse. We are worrying about asking too little of students; they are worrying about heavy pressure on the young. The question asked by Japanese reformers in their reports read like a mirror image of our question: "How can we foster individuality and creativity while at the same time maintain respect for harmony as part of our culture?"

The Japanese have done a remarkable job in teaching the basics, a far better job than we have. The trick, as the reports also note, is not to apply so much pressure that students lose their interest later on.

As Pat Graham, the dean of Harvard's School of Education, says: "We have great difficulty articulating the golden mean which allows youngsters to learn basics but keeps them interested in learning in the future." The "we" in this case includes both Japanese and American. This is the international conundrum and challenge of child-raising and teaching. No nation has a lock on the answer.

The urge to scout the competition and return with definitive notes for the home team is natural and wise. In America, the educational pendulum has swung back to basics. It is easy to praise this Japanese model and ignore its weaknesses. In our own mood of self-criticism, it's equally easy to overlook Japanese self-criticism and head down their road just as it diverges.

Educating kids is more complex than building cars. We have to resist the urge, in this competitive day, to play the simple game of follow the leader. The economic leader. We don't want to end up going in circles.

Ellen Goodman writes for The Boston Globe.

Migrants: Industry where everyone profits except worker

Donald McMurrian

One form of employer exploitation is the low wage migrants receive.

They work sometimes from dawn to dusk doing back-breaking work. On the average less than $100 per week is made. On a yearly basis, they earned $2,200. This is half the poverty level.

Despite their low income, the bosses and crew chiefs have no qualms with dropping them even more. These people are the so-called "respectable" of society. Judges, sheriffs, and other people of respectable status sometimes direct harvesting crews. These people also have been known to recruit illegal aliens.

This brings us to another major problem; recruitment of illegal aliens. They are brought in to the country illegally and are paid even less than the average migrant. They don't complain. After all, the standard of living in Mexico is much worse.

Two-thirds of migrant labor is white, a fact that surprises a lot of people. The other one-third is Hispanic and black. Most of the people who employ the laborers have very little regard for their wellbeing. They allow ills such as small children and pregnant women laboring, some as young as 9 years old dragging around 90-pound bags of fruit for a full working day.

Child labor is widespread among this labor force. This is mainly a result of the fact that a man with a family is not able to make enough on his own to support a family. He then has to turn to his family for help.

Migrant children never get a good education. This is a result of constant moving and the need for the children as a source of income.

It is estimated that 800,000 of migrant workers are under the age of 16. Eighty percent of migrant children never reach high school. Those who do, fall behind and usually end up dropping out.

Forty-nine percent of the housing migrants live in are sub-standard. These consist of run down shacks, one room with a roof, and run down projects that should be condemned.

In fact, some of the living quarters have been condemned by the Department of Health and Welfare, only to be reopened later. This takes place because of housing shortages for migrants. There are some housing projects, but not nearly enough to meet the needs at hand.

The main concept this paper intends to convey is that barriers to get out of a lower, lower class status are virtually impossible to overcome.

Even though there are social and welfare programs that they are eligible for and should receive assistance from, most are unaware of them. Many are afraid to apply.

Legislatures, both state and federal, continue to overlook a group that needs as much help as any of our foreign neighbors. These people of our own country are victims of starvation, poverty and despair. They suffer loss of dignity, pride, poor self-image and degradation. In spite of all this, most are generally honest.

There are steps that can be taken to make their lives a bit more comfortable. Some are; unemployment eligibility, more legislation introduced, housing development, An education system appropriate to them, trade unionization, a program to inform of rights and services, illegal immigration stopped.

The migrants have become an industry in which everyone profits except the worker. The above changes can help put an end to their exploitation. As it is now, things are not improving.

The main reason these people's life conditions have not improved is that the people of a society hate to face up to the cruelties and unpleasantness created by them. This is what makes the barriers for gettibng out of this group or any other lower class sect so high.

Migrant labor is a part of the economy that is completely necessary and always will be. Most likely they will continue to be exploited by society, unless someone from their background attains an adequate education and steps out as spokesman for them. Maybe this can have a positive effect, providing that he cares.

Donald McMurrian, Twin Falls, ran for the Idaho Senate in 1986 as an Independent.

Letters/ Grouping of stories about Jesus created the gospels we now have

Learn these sayings easily

Nearly fifty years after the death of Jesus, a few men had enough foresight to put down in writing some of the things people claimed Jesus had done and said.

So they grouped the stories together to the best of their ability, in the four gospels we now have. I have taken a few of Jesus's sayings and put them together in a way where they can practically be memorized by reading them once.

The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand; repent ye, and believe the gospel. Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand.

Why doth this generation seek after a sign? Verily I say unto you, there shall no sign be given unto this generation.

A wicked and adulterous generation seeketh after a sign, and there shall no sign be given unto it.

The kingdom of God cometh not with observation, neither shall they say, lo here, or lo there, for, behold, the kingdom of God is within you.

But woe unto you that are rich. How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God? Sell all that thou hast and distribute unto the poor. For it is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God. Behold, they that wear soft clothing are in kings houses. The scribes and pharisees sit in Moses' seat.

And when thou prayest, thou shalt not be as the hypocrites are, for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men.

Why callest thou me good? There is none good but one, that is God. God is a spirit. A spirit hath not flesh and bones.

The words that I speak unto you, they are spirit and they are life.

I am come, that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly.

Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations, and I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my father hath appointed unto me, that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

Public deserves protection

It is interesting to have read that someone facing several felony charges is now free because the Jerome County prosecuting attorney failed to complete the necessary legal procedures within the time to bring the case to trial.

Does this lack of professional responsibility constitute the malpractice of law? If not, why not? Will the legal system take any action commensurate with the seriousness of such legal negligence in not fulfilling public obligations?

The U.S. Supreme Court, finding a member of the bar guilty of bringing an unmerited case to that court, determined that such action warranted only a slap on the wrist fine of $2,000. Considering this example of the legal profession taking care of its own problems (as they so frequently remind other professions to do) what hope is there that a lawyer, because of his negligence, allows an accused felon to go free, will suffer any penalty?

If justice is supposed to be the equal application of the law, it would seem logical that the public should be protected against incompetent lawyers committing professional malpractice.

Recognizing what few members of the bar are ever placed on probation or have their license restricted or recinded, it is with a considerable degree of apprehension that I will be watching to see whether justice really prevails as the legal system applies to themselves the same standards they hold others too.

First time for skis is last

A warning to skiers: this Christmas we bought our son a very good pair of skis. He's been wanting them for a long time but they are very expensive so he had to wait to get them, he was very excited and proud of them.

Friday, Jan. 2, he and some friends went to Pomerelle to try them for the first time. It also turned out to be the last time. While the kids were in the lounge someone stole them.

Can you imagine the feeling coming out and finding them gone? Like a kick in the stomach. Then having to go home and tell your parents. I wasn't brought up to wish unfortunate things or harm to anyone, but just this once, and God forgive me, I hope and pray that when that person uses those skis they really wipe out — and good; or end up smack into a tree.

So be careful, your skis may be next, some people don't care whose property they take.

Water policy surprises her

Recently we moved from a city residence to the country. We did, as we all do, called to get our water turned off. Our bill was running between $17 to $18 monthly, and was paid in full in October.

After moving we received a $67 water bill in November, so we began to call to find out why. The person I talked to was very nice explaining the questions I asked. It seems the city only reads meters once every three months. She went on to explain that any "over use" of your usual amount of water is billed only once a year or when you move, as we did. I asked why it wasn't adjusted at the three month period, and she said it was tried that way and people couldn't pay that way. How do they expect anyone to pay big amounts once yearly, or when moving to a new location?

If we would have known of the department policy we could have been paying more on the monthly basis rather than trying to pay this off. I don't recall anyone telling me of this policy when we moved to town and paid our deposit to have it turned on. (The deposit is given back after being in service for one year, which we had already been given credit for.)

The water department has said we can pay this a little at a time until balance is paid in full, which we appreciate, but I wish I would have known of the policy sooner.

I am not trying to criticize the water department, but wonder how many other citizens aren't aware of the policy.

Taiwan flu strikes 38 states

ATLANTA (AP). — The Taiwan flu has spread to at least 38 states and the District of Columbia and some health departments, clinics and doctors have run out of the new vaccine designed to combat it, the national Centers for Disease Control said Thursday.

The Taiwan flu, which strikes most often among people under 35, has now been found in every corner of the mainland United States, with eight states reporting widespread outbreaks last week, the CDC said.

Two of the three U.S. manufacturers of flu vaccine report that they are sold out of both the new Taiwan vaccine and the old flu shot, which remains in use to guard against other types of flu, the CDC said. The third maker, Connaught Laboratories, reported only limited supplies this week.

With Taiwan flu vaccines running short, physicians facing outbreaks should consider prescribing amantadine, a drug which can lessen the complications of flu, for high-risk patients, the CDC said.

The Taiwan flu — a strain of flu virus that researchers call Type A-H1N1 — has now been reported to the CDC from the District of Columbia and from every state except Alaska, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Dakota, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Utah and Wyoming, the Atlanta-based agency said in its weekly report. Taiwan flu cases may have occurred in those 12 states as well, but no reports have yet reached the CDC.

Avalanche strikes ski area

MAMMOTH LAKES, Calif. (AP) — An avalanche sent snow cascading down an upper slope of Mammoth Mountain on Thursday, five days after this snow-starved ski resort opened and two days after cloud seeding.

Only one skier of more than 1,000 on the slopes was knocked down by the rushing wall of snow that covered a 300-foot stretch of the ski run, but he was not hurt, said Mary Shoshone, spokeswoman for the Mammoth-June Ski Resort.

The upper run where the avalanche occurred had opened for the first time this year at 1:30 p.m. MST Thursday, so few skiers were likely to have been on it, she said. The avalanche occurred an hour and 15 minutes later.

Cloud seeding operations were halted because of the avalanche, according to a company that had seeded clouds there Tuesday for the Los Angeles Department of Water and Power.

Car hits office, injures 23

CHULA VISTA, Calif. (AP) — A motorist who suffered a stroke crashed his car through a wall of a crowded Department of Motor Vehicles office Thursday and plowed into a group waiting in line, injuring 23 people.

The accident left the building's registration section in shambles and sent a wave of confusion and panic through the office, where about 200 people were waiting.

The driver of the car, Augustine Medina, suffered a slight stroke and pressed his foot on the accelerator, said Randal Poff, a traffic investigator. Medina, 64, of Chula Vista, was listed in serious condition at Scripps Memorial Hospital.

He had just been inside the office completing his registration and was driving away when he suffered the stroke, Poff said.

Poff said charges probably would not be filed against Medina.

Seventeen people were taken to hospitals and six others were treated at the scene and released, said Ed Guzman, a paramedic supervisor for an ambulance service.

Signal opinions divergent

BALTIMORE (AP) — A control tower operator says signal lights warned the Conrail engineer in the fatal Amtrak crash to prepare for a full stop two miles in advance, but the engineer says the lights only told him to slow to 40 mph, a safety official said Thursday.

Conrail engineer R.L. Gates told National Transportation Safety Board officials he had seen an "approach limited" signal two miles south of the crash site, which told him to slow to 40 mph and proceed at that speed through the next signal, according to NTSB member Joseph Nall.

A tower operator 10 miles away in Edgewood, however, reported the first signal as an "approach" signal, which would have told Gates to slow to 30 mph and prepare for a complete stop at the second signal, Nall said Thursday.

The second signal was located 600 feet from where the three Conrail locomotives and The Colonial collided Sunday, killing 15 people and injuring more than 170 others in Amtrak's worst accident.

Credit card rates under fire

WASHINGTON (AP) — A national coalition of consumer groups called on Americans Thursday to launch a "fight and switch" attack on high credit-card interest rates.

Fight through legislation, and switch to lower-cost cards, they urged.

"Americans are sick and tired of the highway robbery" of excessive credit card rates, said Elgie Holstein, executive director of Bankcard Holders of America.

"Consumers do have a choice; you can find low-interest credit cards around the country," added Alan Fox of the Consumer Federation of America.

Currently, Americans have more than $84 billion in credit-card debt, Holstein said, and interest rates charged on such debt by most banks have remained relatively high while most other interest rates have plummeted, he said.

Kunin chosen for 2nd term

MONTPELIER, Vt. (AP) — Democratic Gov. Madeleine Kunin was overwhelmingly elected to a second term Thursday in a joint session of the Legislature, 66 days after Vermonters failed to award her a majority of their votes.

Kunin received 139 votes from the combined House and Senate, while Republican Peter Smith received 39 votes and Burlington Mayor Bernard Sanders, the only socialist to head a U.S. city, received one vote.

Kunin's easy victory was expected and her staff had been preparing festivities surrounding her inaugural for the last two months.

"There are no surprises here," Kunin said after the vote. "I am pleased that this is resolved."

Governors also were being inaugurated Thursday in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Maine and Nebraska, where Kay Orr becomes the state's first woman chief executive and the nation's first elected female Republican governor.

Asset-hostage tie rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Reagan administration on Thursday rejected anew links by Iranian officials between the fate of American hostages and the return of $500 million in Iranian funds impounded in the United States.

Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III, moreover, suggested that Iran might get its money back more quickly if it stopped making the connection.

The dispute centers on money left over after Iran completed payments on syndicated bank loans outstanding when economic relations were severed between the two countries in the final years of the Carter administration.

The United States agreed in principle earlier to return roughly $500 million in loan overpayments and American officials have been holding periodic talks with Iranian bank officials to devise a final agreement. The last set of talks, Dec. 29-31, ended without agreement because of what the U.S. side said were unresolved technical issues.

Clean water plan easy House winner

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House, with Democrats saying they were not trying to embarrass President Reagan, gave overwhelming approval Thursday to a $20 billion water-quality plan vetoed by the president last year as too expensive.

A Reagan spokesman criticized the action but stopped short of threatening a new veto.

The legislation to reauthorize the Clean Water Act of 1972 was approved 406-8 and sent to the Senate, where 75 senators are cosponsoring an identical bill slated for floor debate next week.

The House debate was low key, with no real Reagan-bashing by the Democrats and no loud calls by Republicans to support the president. The eight "no" votes were cast by Republicans, but the top GOP leaders, Bob Michel of Illinois and Trent Lott of Mississippi, voted for the bill.

Voting against the bill were Dannemeyer, Bob Stump of Arizona, Philip Crane of Illinois, Dan Burton of Indiana, Ron Marlenee of Montana, Donald Lukens of Ohio, Steve Bartlett of Texas and Dick Cheney of Wyoming.

The legislation is the same pollution-control plan that was passed 408-0 by the House and 96-0 by the Senate last October and vetoed by Reagan on Nov. 6 after Congress had adjourned and was unable to take veto-override votes.

Thursday's big margin and the bill's level of support in the Senate indicate that another veto by Reagan would be easily overridden by the Democratic-controlled 100th Congress.

At the White House, when asked if Reagan would veto the new bill if it were enacted, deputy press secretary Albert R. Brashear said merely, "We'll wait and see."

Noting that the administration has no quarrel with regulatory sections of the bill, he said, "This is a spending matter, pure and simple."

Congress, he said, "cannot continue to raise concerns about high deficits while continuing to pass budget-busting bills."

The dispute between Reagan and lawmakers centers on the level of federal aid to states to help construct more of the wastewater and sewage treatment facilities put in place to improve the nation's overall water quality since the basic law was passed in 1972.

After four years of trying, Congress last year decided that $18 billion in federal aid should go to the states before the assistance is terminated in 1994. Reagan last year pushed for a $6 billion program ending in 1989.

In his new budget, the president offered a $12 billion compromise that has attracted little support among lawmakers familiar with a 1984 administration estimate that the nation needs to spend $108 billion on treatment plants by 2000.

There is no apparent dispute between Congress and Reagan over other major provisions of the bill, including a requirement that states begin acting against the source of about half the nation's dirty water: runoff from streets, mines and farms.

Buchanan candidacy attracts conservatives

WASHINGTON (AP) — Conservative activists, looking for someone to rally around in the 1988 presidential election, are focusing their search on the windowless White House office where Patrick J. Buchanan rages against critics of President Reagan.

"I have no doubt that Pat Buchanan is going to become a candidate for president of the United States," Howard Phillips, chairman of the Conservative Caucus, said Thursday.

Angela Buchanan Jackson, sister of the 48-year-old White House communications director, said her brother is actively considering a presidential race and will meet with supporters next Wednesday.

Mrs. Jackson, a former U.S. treasurer, said she has urged her brother to make a decision "by the end of this month, no later than mid-February."

Buchanan did not return telephone calls, but he has been quoted as saying he is "intrigued by the idea" of a presidential bid.

For a White House aide, working out of a cluttered office in the West Wing, to consider a bid to succeed his boss, is an extraordinary development.

But Buchanan is no ordinary White House aide. His outspoken defense of Reagan during the most troubled period of his presidency, has confirmed Buchanan's status as a hero of the political right. It is a role he played once before. As a young White House aide, Buchanan was among the most vocal supporters of President Nixon throughout the Watergate travails.

At a rally on Monday across the street from the White House, Buchanan denounced Democrats getting ready to open investigations of the Iran-Contra affair.

"They're not after the truth," he said. "They're after Ronald Reagan." And he hasn't limited his attacks to Democrats, liberals and the news media.

Lack of trust cost Aspin job

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Les Aspin was rejected for another term as chairman of the House Armed Services Committee because his Democratic colleagues did not trust him after he broke with the party and backed the White House on two key votes, Democratic legislators said Thursday.

"Evidently, he just broke his word to too many people," Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, said in a view echoed by other Democrats.

The Democratic Steering and Policy Committee met Thursday and voted 16-11 to nominate Rep. Charles Bennett, D-Fla., as the new chairman of the panel, said Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas.

Aspin, D-Wis., was defeated, 130-124, Wednesday afternoon as House Democrats met behind closed doors for a secret-ballot election to pick committee chairman for the new 100th Congress.

Day's Iran-Contra developments at a glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of developments in the continuing investigation by an independent counsel and congressional committees of the clandestine sales of arms to Iran and purported diversion of proceeds to benefit the cause of rebels fighting the leftist government in Nicaragua:

US-IRAN-INOUYE

- Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate select committee to investigate the Iran-Contra affair, said it may be necessary for the panel to seek statements by foreign officials. And Inouye suggested that committee members or investigators may need to travel to Israel, Switzerland, Brunei, and possibly Iran, to get essential information.

NICARAGUA-SHOW THE FLAG

- The Pentagon said the battleship Iowa, equipped for the first time with "eye-in-the-sky" drone aircraft, will leave Norfolk, Va., on Friday for a show-the-flag mission off the coast of Central America.

The Iowa will be accompanied by the guided-missile cruiser Yorktown and the destroyer Deyo "and will conduct routine operations off the east coast of Central America," the Pentagon added.

NICARAGUA-PEACE INITIATIVE

- Special envoy Philip C. Habib will sound out government leaders in Central America on a Costa Rican plan to induce the Sandinistas to negotiate an end to their war with U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

But Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams said only military force on "the heavily armed communist regime" in Managua would produce peace talks. Abrams reaffirmed the administration's intention to ask Congress for additional military aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

US-IRAN-BRUNEI

- Secretary of State George P. Shultz, en route to Senegal, told reporters that a third-country contribution to the Nicaraguan resistance movement apparently has disappeared. Shultz declined to identify the country, although widespread reports have indicated that it is Brunei.

"We were told it had been deposited but it wasn't there anymore," Shultz said. The State Department acknowledged that officials there knew as early as last summer about a secret Swiss bank account set up to funnel aid from a Far Eastern country to the Contras.

NSC-CHANGES

- A senior administration official, speaking on grounds of anonymity, said that President Reagan's new national security adviser has ordered his staff to stay out of covert operations. But this official said that Frank Carlucci has reserved the option "to do something special" under certain conditions.

Carlucci, a onetime deputy secretary of defense and No. 2 official at the CIA, was named last month to run the National Security Council staff, succeeding Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, who resigned after disclosure of secret arms sales to Iran and diversion of profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

US-IRAN-ASSETS

- Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said the United States would consider returning impounded Iranian funds if officials in Iran were not connecting the money to cooperation on gaining the release of American hostages.

"The Iranians to some extent have changed the reference of the debate ... by suggesting somehow that if these funds are returned, hostages will be released or something like that and relating it to the question of hostages," Baker said on NBC's "Today" show. "Hostages have absolutely nothing to do with this."

Rate drop no worry for Baker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said Thursday he has no fear that Congress might accept a suggestion by House Speaker Jim Wright to delay part of a scheduled income-tax rate cut in order to reduce the budget deficit.

"I frankly don't see it happening politically," Baker told the Senate Budget Committee. "I really don't believe ... there's a two-thirds majority in both houses up here to delay the tax rate reductions, and there will have to be" because President Reagan would veto such a move. "The president has made himself very clear on that."

Under the landmark tax overhaul enacted last year, the maximum individual tax rate dropped from 50 percent to 38.5 percent this year and is scheduled to fall to 33 percent in 1988.

Wright raised the possibility last month that the top rate be frozen temporarily as part of a deficit-reduction effort. Few colleagues rushed to his defense and some members of Congress are downright hostile to the idea — at least so long as Reagan is so adamant against any tax increase.

Defending Reagan's proposed $1.02-trillion 1988 budget before the Senate committee, Baker repeated the president's view that any kind of general tax increase is unacceptable. Instead, Baker said, the deficit should be reduced by cutting certain non-defense programs, selling some government property and by imposing selected user fees and stepping up tax-collection efforts.

Reagan's latest budget plan, covering the 12 months that begin next Oct. 1, would reduce the deficit from a projected $173 billion this year to $108 billion in 1988, administration officials say.

The budget calls for $18 billion in spending cuts. Those include some, Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., noted, that could not be achieved last year, when Republicans controlled the Senate. Now that Democrats are in control by a 55-45 majority, "What's your fallback position?" Rudman asked Baker.

"If I told you our fallback position was with (raising) revenues, there'd be no effort to get that $18 billion" in spending cuts, Baker said.

But already the president's budget calls for increased revenues of more than $6 billion, Rudman said. If Congress comes up $18 billion short and needs to look at revenues, would increased excise taxes be acceptable? he asked.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who chaired the Budget Committee the past six years, proposed that all spending except that required by law — such as Social Security cost-of-living allowances — be frozen for four years in order to wipe out the deficit.

Quality controls draw fresh attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The system of assuring the quality of weapons purchased by the Defense Department is not as effective as it should be and more effort is needed to improve the process, the General Accounting Office said Thursday.

The report by the congressional watchdog agency said more attention should be given to quality assurance, a view endorsed by the Pentagon as part of the report.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., released the GAO findings and said they show "the Defense Department plays blindman's bluff by paying defense contractors for equipment produced without effective quality assurance standards."

"Quality assurance is key to ensuring the best buys for our defense dollars," said Roth, the ranking Republican on the Senate Government Affairs Committee.

Jack White talks to crowd as Weber State basketball coach Larry Farmer lines up his shot

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Weber State College freshman Bill Gill had had his brief moment of pool-shooting glory, the master said as he prepared his cue for billiards battle.

And as Jack White stepped to the table after Gill had enjoyed a run on the balls, he warned the youngster of what was to come.

"I don't want to give you a superiority complex," he said. "This game, I'm going to bust your buns, teach you respect."

White's gifted hands, which were behind the pool hall mastery portrayed in Paul Newman's 1961 film "The Hustler," then treated 200 students to a dazzling display of skill.

The former world champion's 10th annual visit to WSC was typical of the previous nine and consistent with his notorious reputation: No one is spared from his biting wit or his vicious stick.

The 56-year-old White glided around the pool table in the school's Student Union Building playfully taunting his opponents and the audience.

"If you win this game, I'll buy you a car," he promised Gill.

In a later match Tuesday, he told the crowd, "If I lose this game, everyone gets everything they want."

He didn't lose, of course. No one got anything — except a display of billiards at its best by White and his long-time friend Larry Farmer, Weber State basketball coach.

White, who jokingly claimed he taught Farmer how to use silverware when he was a freshman at UCLA, set up shots for his protege that included the sinking of six balls with one stroke.

Farmer also dropped an 8-ball surrounded by six balls and covered with a handkerchief, a feat that earned high-fives from his mentor.

"I'm proud of you, blood," White told him. "Now get out of here."

Pop keeps woman alive for 6 days

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 70-year-old woman trapped in her apartment after she fell from a chair, says she survived on a half gallon of soda pop for six days before she was found by a gas meter reader.

Louise Roby, who suffers from emphysema and a heart condition, could not pull herself up after her fall on New Year's Eve.

She tried unsuccessfully to reach the telephone and food. Eventually, she dragged herself near a heating duct where she covered herself with towels for warmth. After she found two bottles of cola, she prayed for something to happen.

"I cried. I prayed all the time," she told The Columbus Dispatch in a story published Thursday. "I kept wondering how much longer I could last."

On Tuesday, Columbia Gas Co. employee Susan Rizzonelli came to read the apartment's gas meter. Ms. Roby yelled for help, Ms. Rizzonelli heard her and brought city police, who broke the lock on the front door and pulled her up.

The only injuries Ms. Roby had were friction burns from crawling across her rug, medics and her doctor said. She was not hospitalized.

Judge orders scholarship contribution

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — A judge has ordered a woman convicted of vehicular manslaughter to contribute $5,000 to a scholarship fund to benefit victims of drunken drivers.

Sonoma County Superior Court Judges Arnold Rosenfield issued the order Wednesday in sentencing Mary Elizabeth Liebig, 32. The woman was convicted in the Nov. 24, 1985, death of Yvette Cardinaux, 65.

Liebig's car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle driven by the victim's son, according to California Highway Patrol officers.

A jury convicted the woman of manslaughter without gross negligence and felony drunken driving.

At the time of the accident, Liebig was on probation for a drunken driving conviction from Napa County in January 1985.

Rosenfield also ordered Liebig to serve a year in county jail, with credit for 84 days already spent in custody, and placed her on four years' probation.

In addition to the $5,000 to be donated to the scholarship fund, the judge also ordered additional fines of $3,500.

The money will be donated in the name of the victim to a Mothers Against Drunk Drivers' scholarship fund administered by the student organisation, Students Against Driving Drunk.

Hippos shake early golfers

PHALABORWA, South Africa (AP) — Two hippopotamuses crashed out of the bushes and across a fairway during the Phalaborwa Golf Classic on Thursday, sending terrified golfers racing for the nearest trees.

"I saw these huge brown shapes come hurtling out of the bush and I thought at first they were rhinos," said Jannie Ackerman of Witbank. "I didn't stop to take a second look until I was right across on the other side."

Paul Burley, 25, of Grimsby, England, had just hit his tee shot into the rough on the third hole of the Hans Merensky Country Club in the $63,000 tournament. He was standing over his ball, lining up his second shot when he heard loud slashing in the thick bush behind him.

"Suddenly two hippos, one behind the other, came crashing out of the bush towards us. My caddie threw down my bag and was off across the fairway like a shot, and I was close behind," said Burley.

Several hippo families live in the pools on the 17th hole of the golf course, which adjoins the Kruger National Park in northwestern Transvaal.

Day's Iran-Contra developments at a glance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here are highlights of developments in the continuing investigation by an independent counsel and congressional committees of the clandestine sales of arms to Iran and purported diversion of proceeds to benefit the cause of rebels fighting the leftist government in Nicaragua:

US-IRAN-INOUYE

- Sen. Daniel K. Inouye, D-Hawaii, chairman of the Senate select committee to investigate the Iran-Contra affair, said it may be necessary for the panel to seek statements by foreign officials. And Inouye suggested that committee members or investigators may need to travel to Israel, Switzerland, Brunei, and possibly Iran, to get essential information.

NICARAGUA-SHOW THE FLAG

- The Pentagon said the battleship Iowa, equipped for the first time with "eye-in-the-sky" drone aircraft, will leave Norfolk, Va., on Friday for a show-the-flag mission off the coast of Central America.

The Iowa will be accompanied by the guided-missile cruiser Yorktown and the destroyer Deyo "and will conduct routine operations off the east coast of Central America," the Pentagon added.

NICARAGUA-PEACE INITIATIVE

- Special envoy Philip C. Habib will sound out government leaders in Central America on a Costa Rican plan to induce the Sandinistas to negotiate an end to their war with U.S.-backed Contra rebels.

But Assistant Secretary of State Elliott Abrams said only military force on "the heavily armed communist regime" in Managua would produce peace talks. Abrams reaffirmed the administration's intention to ask Congress for additional military aid to the Contra rebels in Nicaragua.

US-IRAN-BRUNEI

- Secretary of State George P. Shultz, en route to Senegal, told reporters that a third-country contribution to the Nicaraguan resistance movement apparently has disappeared. Shultz declined to identify the country, although widespread reports have indicated that it is Brunei.

"We were told it had been deposited but it wasn't there anymore," Shultz said. The State Department acknowledged that officials there knew as early as last summer about a secret Swiss bank account set up to funnel aid from a Far Eastern country to the Contras.

NSC-CHANGES

- A senior administration official, speaking on grounds of anonymity, said that President Reagan's new national security adviser has ordered his staff to stay out of covert operations. But this official said that Frank Carlucci has reserved the option "to do something special" under certain conditions.

Carlucci, a onetime deputy secretary of defense and No. 2 official at the CIA, was named last month to run the National Security Council staff, succeeding Vice Adm. John M. Poindexter, who resigned after disclosure of secret arms sales to Iran and diversion of profits to Nicaraguan rebels.

US-IRAN-ASSETS

- Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said the United States would consider returning impounded Iranian funds if officials in Iran were not connecting the money to cooperation on gaining the release of American hostages.

"The Iranians to some extent have changed the reference of the debate . . . by suggesting somehow that if these funds are returned, hostages will be released or something like that and relating it to the question of hostages," Baker said on NBC's "Today" show. "Hostages have absolutely nothing to do with this."

Rate drop no worry for Baker

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury Secretary James A. Baker III said Thursday he has no fear that Congress might accept a suggestion by House Speaker Jim Wright to delay part of a scheduled income-tax rate cut in order to reduce the budget deficit.

"I frankly don't see it happening politically," Baker told the Senate Budget Committee. "I really don't believe . . . there's a two-thirds majority in both houses up here to delay the tax rate reductions, and there will have to be" because President Reagan would veto such a move. "The president has made himself very clear on that."

Under the landmark tax overhaul enacted last year, the maximum individual tax rate dropped from 50 percent to 38.5 percent this year and is scheduled to fall to 33 percent in 1988.

Wright raised the possibility last month that the top rate be frozen temporarily as part of a deficit-reduction effort. Few colleagues rushed to his defense and some members of Congress are downright hostile to the idea — at least so long as Reagan is so adamant against any tax increase.

Defending Reagan's proposed $1.02-trillion 1988 budget before the Senate committee, Baker repeated the president's view that any kind of general tax increase is unacceptable. Instead, Baker said, the deficit should be reduced by cutting certain non-defense programs, selling some government property and by imposing selected user fees and stepping up tax-collection efforts.

Reagan's latest budget plan, covering the 12 months that begin next Oct. 1, would reduce the deficit from a projected $173 billion this year to $108 billion in 1988, administration officials say.

The budget calls for $18 billion in spending cuts. Those include some, Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., noted, that could not be achieved last year, when Republicans controlled the Senate. Now that Democrats are in control by a 55-45 majority, "What's your fallback position?" Rudman asked Baker.

"If I told you our fallback position was with (raising) revenues, there'd be no effort to get that $18 billion" in spending cuts, Baker said.

But already the president's budget calls for increased revenues of more than $6 billion, Rudman said. If Congress comes up $18 billion short and needs to look at revenues, would increased excise taxes be acceptable? he asked.

Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., who chaired the Budget Committee the past six years, proposed that all spending except that required by law — such as Social Security cost-of-living allowances — be frozen for four years in order to wipe out the deficit.

Quality controls draw fresh attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — The system of assuring the quality of weapons purchased by the Defense Department is not as effective as it should be and more effort is needed to improve the process, the General Accounting Office said Thursday.

The report by the congressional watchdog agency said more attention should be given to quality assurance, a view endorsed by the Pentagon as part of the report.

Sen. William Roth, R-Del., released the GAO findings and said they show "the Defense Department plays blindman's bluff by paying defense contractors for equipment produced without effective quality assurance standards."

"Quality assurance is key to ensuring the best buys for our defense dollars," said Roth, the ranking Republican on the Senate Government Affairs Committee.

Pool master delights crowd on visit to campus

Jack White talks to crowd as Weber State basketball coach Larry Farmer lines up his shot

OGDEN, Utah (AP) — Weber State College freshman Bill Gill had had his brief moment of pool-shooting glory, the master said as he prepared his cue for billiards battle.

And as Jack White stepped to the table after Gill had enjoyed a run on the balls, he warned the youngster of what was to come.

"I don't want to give you a superiority complex," he said. "This game, I'm going to bust your buns, teach you respect."

White's gifted hands, which were behind the pool hall mastery portrayed in Paul Newman's 1961 film "The Hustler," then treated 200 students to a dazzling display of skill.

The former world champion's 10th annual visit to WSC was typical of the previous nine and consistent with his notorious reputation: No one is spared from his biting wit or his vicious stick.

The 56-year-old White glided around the pool table in the school's Student Union Building playfully taunting his opponents and the audience.

"If you win this game, I'll buy you a car," he promised Gill.

In a later match Tuesday, he told the crowd, "If I lose this game, everyone gets everything they want."

He didn't lose, of course. No one got anything — except a display of billiards at its best by White and his long-time friend Larry Farmer, Weber State basketball coach.

White, who jokingly claimed he taught Farmer how to use silverware when he was a freshman at UCLA, set up shots for his protege that included the sinking of six balls with one stroke.

Farmer also dropped an 8-ball surrounded by six balls and covered with a handkerchief, a feat that earned high-fives from his mentor.

"I'm proud of you, blood," White told him. "Now get out of here."

Pop keeps woman alive for 6 days

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A 70-year-old woman, trapped in her apartment after she fell from a chair, says she survived on a half gallon of soda pop for six days before she was found by a gas meter reader.

Louise Roby, who suffers from emphysema and a heart condition, could not pull herself up after her fall on New Year's Eve.

She tried unsuccessfully to reach the telephone and food. Eventually, she dragged herself near a heating duct where she covered herself with towels for warmth. After she found two bottles of cola, she prayed for something to happen.

"I cried. I prayed all the time," she told The Columbus Dispatch in a story published Thursday. "I kept wondering how much longer I could last."

On Tuesday, Columbia Gas Co. employee Susan Rizzonelli came to read the apartment's gas meter. Ms. Roby yelled for help, Ms. Rizzonelli heard her and brought city police, who broke the lock on the front door and pulled her up.

The only injuries Ms. Roby had were friction burns from crawling across her rug, medics and her doctor said. She was not hospitalized.

Judge orders scholarship contribution

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — A judge has ordered a woman convicted of vehicular manslaughter to contribute $5,000 to a scholarship fund to benefit victims of drunken drivers.

Sonoma County Superior Court Judges Arnold Rosenfield issued the order Wednesday in sentencing Mary Elizabeth Liebig, 32. The woman was convicted in the Nov. 24, 1985, death of Yvette Cardinaux, 65.

Liebig's car crossed the center line and collided with a vehicle driven by the victim's son, according to California Highway Patrol officers.

A jury convicted the woman of manslaughter without gross negligence and felony drunken driving.

At the time of the accident, Liebig was on probation for a drunken driving conviction from Napa County in January 1985.

Rosenfield also ordered Liebig to serve a year in county jail, with credit for 84 days already spent in custody, and placed her on four years' probation.

In addition to the $5,000 to be donated to the scholarship fund, the judge also ordered additional fines of $3,500.

The money will be donated in the name of the victim to a Mothers Against Drunk Drivers' scholarship fund administered by the student organization, Students Against Driving Drunk.

Hippos shake early golfers

PHALABORWA, South Africa (AP) — Two hippopotamuses crashed out of the bushes and across a fairway during the Phalaborwa Golf Classic on Thursday, sending terrified golfers racing for the nearest trees.

"I saw these huge brown shapes come hurtling out of the bush and I thought at first they were rhinos," said Jannie Ackerman of Witbank. "I didn't stop to take a second look until I was right across on the other side."

Paul Burley, 25, of Grimsby, England, had just hit his tee shot into the rough on the third hole of the Hans Merensky Country Club in the $63,000 tournament. He was standing over his ball, lining up his second shot when he heard loud slashing in the thick bush behind him.

"Suddenly two hippos, one behind the other, came crashing out of the bush towards us. My caddie threw down my bag and was off across the fairway like a shot, and I was close behind," said Burley.

Several hippo families live in the pools on the 17th hole of the golf course, which adjoins the Kruger National Park in northwestern Transvaal.

New liberties in Nicaragua may not outlast Ortega's ink

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The Sandinista government's first constitution takes effect today, guaranteeing a broad range of civil liberties which may be suspended before President Daniel Ortega's signature on the charter is dry.

The signing of the document, which also promises political pluralism, a mixed economy and non-alignment, is to take place in the capital's Plaza de la Revolucion. Peruvian President Alan Garcia, a Soviet cosmonaut and 5,000 other guests are expected to witness the ceremony.

The charter, two years in the drafting, was approved by the Sandinista-controlled National Assembly on Nov. 19.

The 202-article constitution guarantees, among other things, freedom of expression, the right to strike and prohibits imprisonment without a court order.

These and most other civil liberties are suspended under a state of emergency decreed in 1982. The emergency will be voided when Ortega signs the constitution, but he is expected to reimpose it immediately.

Bayardo Arce, one of nine senior leaders of the ruling Sandinista National Liberation Front, said the emergency decree's justification — aggression by U.S.-backed Contra rebels — still exists.

Barricada, the official newspaper of the leftist Sandinista Front, called the completion of the constitution "the most important political event of 1986."

But critics complained that the charter puts the election machinery in the hands of the government and makes the military — the Sandinista Popular Army — a partisan force.

"The constitution only serves as a tool of propaganda for foreign consumption," said Erick Ramirez, the president of the Social Christian Party.

The constitution says elections will be "organized and directed" by a commission appointed by the National Assembly. The Sandinistas have 61 of the assembly's 96 seats.

The constitution replaces the Statute of Rights and Guarantees of Nicaraguans, which went into effect when a Sandinista-led junta came to power after toppling the right-wing dictatorship of Anastasio Somoza in July 1979.

A National Assembly commission drafted the constitution after the government held a series of town meetings across the country to solicit opinions from the people. The full assembly spent 49 sessions debating, at times heatedly, the draft and made several changes.

The constitution is sometimes vague, and some observers said the way the Sandinistas use and interpret it will show how far left they plan to go.

Shultz lauds Africa's shift from socialism

DAKAR, Senegal (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz on Thursday praised the trend from socialism to free enterprise in Africa and said close links to the West are the continent's key to prosperity.

He said in a speech at the Bank of West Africa that more enlightened economic policies probably resulted in enough production last year to make Africa self-sufficient in food grains, which "hasn't been seen for many years." Shultz acknowledged, however, that distribution problems caused shortages in some areas.

This is the first stop on an African tour that also will take Shultz to Cameroon, Kenya, Nigeria, Ivory Coast and Liberia, all friendly to the United States. It is his first trip to sub-Saharan Africa during four years in office.

He said comparative aid figures show the West and the Soviet bloc have "very different visions of Africa's future."

Western nations provided almost $8 billion to sub-Saharan Africa in 1984 while the Soviet Union and its allies sent only $635 million, he said. Shultz added that the Soviet Union had provided 20 times as much military aid as the United States in the 1980s.

African students boycott classes

PEKING (AP) — African students in China, who staged a noisy 12-mile march to protest a letter criticizing black students' behavior, said Thursday they will boycott classes until they receive written assurances from the government of their safety.

More than 200 students, mostly Africans, marched to the Moroccan Embassy on Thursday to protest the letter, circulated among foreign students and to some African embassies.

The one-page letter signed "Students Association" complained about black students' manners, including treatment of Chinese women, and said that if the behavior did not improve, "new and even harder lessions of 'friendship' will follow."

Moroccan Ambassador Abderrahim Harkett, dean of the African diplomatic corps, met the students on the embassy steps and promised immediate action to assure their safety and dignity.

He told the students he had asked the State Education Commission to meet with student representatives and the commission had said it would reply soon. He said he also would meet with other African ambassadors and would ask that their complaints be published in the official media.

Despite raid, France backing away in Chad

PARIS (AP) — France assured its military credibility in Chad by sending its warplanes against a Libyan airfield there but does not want to get dragged further into what it sees as a civil war, the defense minister said Thursday.

The government of Chadian President Hissene Habre reported a new and "savage" Libyan attack on the northern town of Zouar, the scene of several battles during the past three weeks.

Defense Minister Andre Giraud said, despite Libyan denials, that MiG fighter-bombers of Col. Moammar Gadhafi's air force on Wednesday attacked the village of Kouba Oulanga. The village is 40 miles south of the 16th parallel, the line below which the French have said they will not tolerate Libyan military activity.

But he said the raid was ineffectual, and he implied French jets would not again retaliate against Libyan targets.

French jets, retaliating for a Libyan air attack on two southern towns Saturday, knocked out the radar system Wednesday at the Libyan airfield in Ouadi Doum, 95 miles northeast of the major oasis at Faya Largeau. The Libyan raid on Kouba Oulanga came a few hours later.

Gadhafi's government, through the official news agency JANA, called the report of the Libyan raid "a lie."

France has in the past responded to Libyan sorties south of the 16th parallel by sending its planes against Libyan targets in northern Chad.

In N'Djamena, the capital of Chad, official sources said Zouar, a town on the edge of the Tibesti Mountains in extreme northwestern Chad, came under Libyan bombardment Thursday.

There were no further details on the alleged attack. Chadian officials did not say what kind of firepower was used in the bombardment, though there was no mention of aircraft.

Giraud repeated France's concern about "avoiding escalation" and "internationalization of the conflict" in Chad.

Murphy meets Israelis

JERUSALEM (AP) — U.S. envoy Richard Murphy met separately with Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres on Thursday to explore prospects for revitalizing the Arab-Israeli peace process.

Murphy crossed the Jordan River into Israel earlier in the day to give Shamir and Peres a report on his two days of talks with King Hussein and Jordanian officials in Amman, where no progress was evident.

"This was a time for continued quiet diplomacy. This is the continuation of a constant search for peace among our friends in the Middle East," Murphy told reporters after meeting Shamir.

Peres said that from his conversation with Murphy later Thursday he understood that the Jordanians were interested in renewing the peace process.

"So are we," he said. "We continue to go to work."

One of the obstacles blocking progress in Middle East peace efforts is who would represent Palestinians living in the Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

Hussein wants the Palestinians to be represented in peace talks by the Palestine Liberation Organization, but Shamir rejects that. Israel defines the PLO as a terrorist organization bent on destroying the Jewish state.

Murphy's two-week shuttle mission is his first to the region since Shamir, leader of the right-wing Likud bloc, became prime minister Oct. 20 under the government coalition arrangement.

Attacks repulsed

TOKYO (AP) — Vietnam claimed Thursday that its troops repulsed repeated border assaults from China this week in which nearly 1,500 Chinese soldiers were killed, wounded or captured.

China says the Vietnamese were the attackers and its frontier guards drove them back with heavy losses.

Former county worker faces 4 theft charges

By BONNIE BAIRD JONES
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — A criminal complaint was filed Thursday afternoon in 5th District Magistrate Court in Twin Falls charging a former employee of the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department with four counts of felony grand theft, involving more than $26,000 in county funds.

Twin Falls County Prosecutor K. Ellen Baxter filed the complaint shortly after noon Thursday and asked that Charlene Hine, 42, of Twin Falls, be summoned into court to answer the charges.

No date for the arraignment had been set Thursday, court clerks said.

Hine, who had worked for the Sheriff's Department the past 8 years, resigned a week ago.

Her attorney, Keith Roark of Hailey, said Thursday that Hine is completely innocent of any crime.

"There is absolutely no criminal act involved and she has done nothing wrong. If a charge is filed in court, we will prove this," Roark said. "Sheriff Munn and his people may have a lot of explaining to do. Mrs. Hine does not intend to be used as a scapegoat for sloppy office management."

Roark took exception to comments in The Times-News Thursday by Sheriff James Munn and Baxter, prior to a charge having been filed. He said the comments implied that Hine had committed a crime and was guilty.

The complaint against Hine alleges that between the dates of June 1, 1984, and Jan. 1, 1987, she is believed to have taken $26,027.15 in Twin Falls County money while employed in the sheriff's office. Hine worked there as a records clerk, a position she has held the past 8 years.

Three other charges in the complaint list specific amounts of the total and dates on which the money was allegedly taken.

On Nov. 26, the complaint says, $168 in county money was taken and on Dec. 4, 1986, $180 was taken. The fourth count alleges that as recently as Dec. 19, 1986, $204 in county money was taken.

Munn and Baxter said earlier that the missing money involves the prisoner's work-release fund. Persons serving jail sentences but granted release during working hours in order to continue their jobs, pay $12 per day in board and room fees. When the fee is paid, a receipt is issued to the prisoner making the payment and the money is turned in to the County Clerk's Office and an auditor's certificate issued to the department.

County Clerk-Auditor Richard Pence said he was unaware any money was missing, but that he has no way of knowing if there is a shortage as long as the money turned in to his office matches the accompanying receipts.

PBS launches fund drive for equipment

By BART JANSEN
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Idaho Educational Public Broadcasting System has begun looking toward business donations, beyond annual viewership telethons, in a one-time campaign to replace equipment that hasn't been upgraded for decades.

General Manager Jerry Garber said equipment has fallen into such disrepair that engineers spend their time "stomping out brush fires, rather than working toward preventing problems."

Businesses will now be tapped to fund replacements unavailable under ordinary budgets.

While the Legislature and federal grants fund a fraction of IEPBS's budget, state money is specifically earmarked for educational programming during the day. Those funds and money collected from annual telethons goes toward programming, but additional funds for capital improvements are now needed to replace theequipment that puts those shows on the air.

"The equipment in the system is obsolete or worn out or both," Garber said in an interview with The Times-News. "It's getting to the point where when it runs out we can't get parts."

A 5-year campaign is under way, with a goal of raising $3 million. It is intended to replace transmitters, cameras and other equipment while improving strictly the mechanical and electronic aspects of the business.

"We're asking the general public to buy what they see (through telethon donations) and we're asking those with bigger resources to give toward these improvements," Garber said.

A goal to raise $125,000 during the next 5 years has been set for Magic Valley and, specifically, Twin Falls community businesses.

Robert Wright, vice president of Universal Frozen Foods, is campaign manager for Magic Valley and optimistic about prospects for raising the money from area businesses and partnerships.

"There is a lot of good support for PBS, and I think people see this as a worthwhile cause to contribute to," Wright said Thursday. He's already recruited 30 volunteers to solicit contributions and they have received positive support during initial contacts, Wright said.

The need for the campaign is to replace dilapidated equipment, Director of Marketing Ron Pisaneschi said equipment that might have a shelf-life of 12 years has been in operation 20 years, so it is drawing its last video breath. Programming is already being clouded by the "snow" of poor fidelity and fails to reach some areas at all.

The capital improvements will remedy those types of problems and are hoped to expose Burley, which at this point lies in a hole in the system's blanket of coverage, to public television.

"We're looking to provide a lot more punch," Garber said.

The Idaho Educational Public Broadcasting System operates under a $2.6 million annual budget for three stations — KAID in Boise, KISU in Pocatello and KUID in Moscow — that provide Idaho with 6,000 hours of programing a year. About 70 full- and part-time employees run the stations, 26 translators and microwave system that blankets Idaho with coverage.

And Idaho public television remains popular with state residents.

Director of Programming Myron Tisdel said 1986 ratings for November were higher than the previous year, when the Boise sta-

Cover recalls 12 years as commissioner

'The one thing I wish for is a new jail. It is getting worse and not better.'

By PAT MARCANTONIO
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Ann Cover's trip down memory lane doesn't sound like one from your average retiree.

The 60-year-old Cover, who steps down on Monday after 12 years as a Twin Falls County commissioner, remembers heated public hearings over land-use planning which required the presence of a deputy sheriff.

She recalls hassles over the Twin Falls County jail and people coming into her office "wanting to know why you can't do this and that."

But what Cover will remember most are her co-workers. And it's their dedication to the county that made the years worth it, she says.

When Cover first entered office things were simpler.

Back then, the county would help fill grocery orders for indigents, Cover says.

"I can remember when we would give them coal," she said.

Today's indigent bills amount to hundreds of thousands of dollars, mainly for medical treatment, she says. The amounts aren't surprising because medical treatment is more expensive and sophisticated.

"The bills will keep rising and rising. People are living longer. (And) the Idaho code says we are the last resort."

In the past few years, the county's largest indigent bills were due to premature babies. Cover says she believes people aren't preparing financially for babies as they once did.

What's aided counties is the formation of a self-insurance pool to help them pay indigent medical bills, says Cover, a board member of the program.

Another sign of changing times occurred at the county jail, located three floors above her office in the Courthouse.

Several years ago the jail inmates weren't segregated as they are now, she says. Juveniles would be separated from adults, but someone held on a misdemeanor might be placed in the same cell as an inmate held on a felony.

Work toward a new jail has taken up a large part of the County Board of Commissioners' time in the past few years.

"The one thing I wish for is a new jail. It (the present jail) is getting worse and not better," Cover says.

Lack of a new jail is not so much a disappointment as a hassle, particularly because of a lawsuit filed last fall over the jail, she says. In the case, the commissioners agreed to make several jail improvements and place a cap on the jail population, which resulted in the transportation of inmates to other jails.

The commissioners agreed — also — to place another jail bond issue before the public, and work has started on the proposal. County voters in March 1985 rejected a $6.2 million bond issue to build a new jail.

Cover says she doesn't know, however, whether she will work on helping to pass a bond for a new jail.

Cover is proud of land-use planning, which she says helped protect farmland. But during the early 1970s, when public hearings were held on the subject, county residents weren't supportive.

"It was an unknown and everyone is afraid of the unknown. They thought it was taking their rights away. I even had sheriff's deputies at the hearings," she says.

One thing that hasn't changed is the counties' relationship to the state Legislature. She says the lawmakers continue to heap on responsibilities through new laws, but provide little or

Group forms to lure tourists to Magic Valley

TWIN FALLS — A group of Magic Valley businesses has joined forces to lure more tourists to the area.

The Magic Valley Hospitality Association will pool money and marketing skills to attract more travelers and their dollars to the local economy, organizers said Wednesday.

Established on Tuesday at Twin Falls, the new group plans to publicize the Magic Valley's attractions and to stage some new events angled at tourists, said Steve Soran, a Twin Falls restaurant owner. An entertainment guide for the area will be the group's premiere promotion, he said.

The non-profit association also will foster cooperation among hotels, motels, restaurants and other related businesses, Soran said. "We really think we can cultivate an awareness of the value and the importance of the tourist," he said.

But "To promote tourism, you've got to have some funds," Soran said. Raising money to pump into tourism promotions will be a top priority. The fund-raising will start with membership dues of $30 for charter memberships and $50 for regular memberships.

The Hospitality Association also plans to cooperate with the Magicland Regional Travel Committee in applying for state tourism grants. The Idaho Travel Council distributes grants for tourism promotions, using money from a 2-percent state tax on hotel and motel lodging.

The Magic Valley Hospitality Association was formed by about 15 local businesses and individuals, said Soran, one of the seven members on an ad hoc organizing committee. The association currently is incorporating as a non-profit entity.

Rupert will oppose BPA's requested rate hike

By ADELL HARVEY
Times-News correspondent

RUPERT — The Rupert City Council went on record Tuesday night to oppose Bonneville Power Administration's requested wholesale power rate increase of 11.5 percent.

City Attorney Don Chisholm said that the increase would translate into a 9 percent retail rate increase for Rupert city customers.

Mayor Bill Whittom said that local energy consumption is down 4 percent from last year and said that the utility company was raising rates to pick up the lost revenue. The BPA said this fall that it had a $60 million operating loss in the last year.

"Every time they raise the rates, it causes consumption to reduce even more," he said. "It's disheartening for a little city like ours to take on the Bonneville Power Administration every time this happens.

"By forcing ever-increasing rates upon the public, BPA is destroying its own load base," Whittom said. "It's time for them to 'get real' and recognize the laws of supply and demand. They need to take the courageous step of lowering, not increasing, rates to preserve the load base."

The council voted to urge all city ratepayers to appear at the public hearing at the Burley Inn on Feb. 12 to protest the increase.

The council also agreed to actively support Burley as the site of the proposed state prison. Whittom read a recent news release which said Boise had endured 17 consecutive days of

Twin Falls bank divvies up donations to county schools

By BOB FREUND
Times-News writer

TWIN FALLS — Castleford pupils are reading library books that originated with consumer loans.

Students at Kimberly Junior High School soon will watch educational films in an auditorium remodeled with fees from new credit cards.

With their five new, solar-powered calculators, 8th-graders in Buhl also might figure out how Twin Falls Bank and Trust Co. is divvying up $3,165.21 among seven school districts in Twin Falls County.

The Twin Falls bank next week will deliver the final donations from its Lending Hand program to schools in Twin Falls, Kimberly, Filer, Buhl, Murtaugh, Castleford and Hansen.

The program was part promotion and part charity, says Lance Clow, Twin Falls Bank & Trust director of marketing. In the last 3 months of 1985, the bank pledged part of its income from new consumer loans and from new credit cards to the local schools.

A year ago the bank split $5,250 evenly among the county's seven major school districts. Each received $750.

Next week's donation will be disbursed according to student population, Clow said Tuesday. Twin Falls School District, the county's largest, will receive $1,879.81. The district last year purchased a word processor for its journalism classes with the money.

Other districts benefitting are: Buhl, $443.45; Filer, $293,10; Kimberly, $273.47; Hansen, $111.42; Castleford, $90.53, and Murtaugh, $73.43.

In Castleford, the previous money went to purchase books for the district's newly developed library. "It's an area all students can benefit from and it's one of the areas we can't allocate a whole lot of money to," says Ron Erickson, superintendent of schools.

Kimberly Superintendent Rich Bauscher says the donation will help put the final touches on a remodeling of the Junior High School auditori3m. The Lending Hand program has provided about two-thirds of the money for the $1,500 project, he says.

In announcing the program 15 months ago, bank officers said the program was designed to promote the bank and bolster the schools. It also was intended to remind taxpayers of a state tax credit available for donating to Idaho schools, Clow said.

But the program's performance in generating bank business fell short of expectations because auto manufacturers offered cut-rate financing on auto loans, Clow said. The customers financed with the carmakers' companies, instead of with local banks.

Nevertheless, the bank matched the record set in the previous year, booking about $2.6 million worth of consumer financing in the 3-month period. The Lending Hand program gave the schools 1 percent of interest generated from those loans.

Twin Falls Bank and Trust also attracted $500,000 in borrowing ability on new credit cards. The bank gave the schools $5 for each new credit card, or a third of the annual service fee for the card.

The bank currently has no plans for a second Lending Hand program or for a similar project, Clow said.

tion's ratings were ranked eighth-best in the country, considering the city's population. He said nearly half of Idaho's residents with television turn on a public station at least once a week.

"Idaho has always had really good ratings," Tisdel said.

Despite their replacing equipment and not programming in the campaign, Garber and Pisaneschi face the stigma attached to public television as boring and elitist.

Garber said a common misconception he rejects is: "You don't watch it in pajamas, but you watch it in a sport coat — that's not true."

He said the three areas of programming are educational shows, which assist kindergarten through 12th grade teachers with their classes during the day; informational shows, such as McNeil-Lehrer Newshour and Nova; and the "flagship" of public television, children's shows, such as Sesame Street.

Paul school smell solved: gas

PAUL (AP) — School officials have attributed sewer gas to the odor problems that plagued students and teachers last fall.

Superintendent Gene Snapp said tests for sewer gas were negative, but said the results apparently were distorted because the rooms were aired out before testing.

Formaldehyde tests showed a presence of that substance at levels too low to detect by smell.

Snapp said the problem has been taken care of: A sewer line that was thought to be causing the problem was reworked and capped off inside.

Police report five burglaries

TWIN FALLS — A burglary reported to Twin Falls police Tuesday involved the loss of $1,517 in electronic equipment.

Police said the owner, Bobby Jones, reported someone entered his apartment at 312 Shoshone St. E., between 1 p.m. and 11 p.m. Tuesday. He said the burglars took a television set, sound and audio equipment from his home. Police said a door had been pried open to gain entry.

A burglary at the Gem State Paper Co. building, 264 4th Ave. S., resulted in a loss of $800 in merchandise, Twin Falls police reports showed Thursday.

John Carl Anderson reported the building had been broken into and someone ransacked several areas of the building, taking silver articles valued at $800.

Bessie Marie Egbert of 924 Sunrise Blvd., reported that someone took a rifle valued at $250 from her home after entering sometime in the past few days.

Another burglary reported to Twin Falls police Thursday involved the loss of $320 in sound and radar detection equipment from a vehicle owned by Sam R. Vermilysa. The vehicle was parked in the 300 block of 2nd Avenue East, when someone broke out a window to gain entry and removed the equipment.

Mike R. Bonner at Wills Motor Co. reported someone took two bucket seats from a vehicle at the firm's lot at 250 4th Ave. W. Officers said the four-wheel-drive vehicle was apparently entered through an unlocked door. Loss was estimated at a total of $1,400.

Fitness trail project doing well

TWIN FALLS — As of mid-December, the College of Southern Idaho fitness trail project will have $30,558 of the $50,000 needed for development. The Twin Falls Rotary Club is collecting funds and organizing the entire project as a community service.

Rotary spokesman Mark Koffer said the campaign for fitness trail funds is going well and further donations are expected daily. Two of the larger recent donations are the Magic Valley Ladies Auxiliary, which donated $10,000, and the Twin Falls Clinic and Hospital, which donated $5,000.

The 2.1-mile fitness trail will be installed at the east end of the CSI campus and will provide exercise stations at various points.

The trail itself can be used for running, jogging or walking and is expected to be widely used by the community. Construction is expected to begin in the spring.

Hearings set on business help

BOISE — State Sen. Ann Rydalch, R-Idaho Falls, will hold public hearings Tuesday on how to transfer technology to small business and diversify Idaho's economy.

Rydalch, chairman of the Senate Commerce and Labor Committee, said officials at the College of Southern Idaho and business people in the Magic Valley may want to attend or testify at the hearings, beginning at 1:30 p.m. in Senate Room 430.

Rydalch said officials from INEL and the Small Business Administration are scheduled to testify.

"I hope our committee can use the information to follow up with additional hearings, or to sponsor legislation that might help," Rydalch said.

CSI has been proposing a trade center that officials said would be a "one-stop shop" to bring government, business and new technology together.

Rydalch said the hearings are open. Anyone interested in testifying should contact the Senate pro tem office at 334-2085 by Monday to be placed on the agenda, Rydalch said.

no money to fund them.

"They have given us a lot of direction, but no money. Without money we just can't do all they are asking us to do," she says.

Working for the county was a job that helped Cover put her children through college and now that they have graduated it's another reason to leave office, she says.

She previously said she wanted to retire to spend more time with her children and because it was time for "new ideas."

Through the years, Cover's public life fit alongside family life. A teacher, she served on the Twin Falls City Council and the city Planning and Zoning Commission.

While most of her children now reside in California, Cover says she will remain in Twin Falls.

"This is my place. This is my home. I chose this place," she says.

Retirement for Cover will mean slowing down — not rushing to the grocery store then off to an evening meeting. She will do some serious house cleaning of memorabilia that has piled up over the years. She says she will send newspaper clippings about her public life to her children "to let them know what mom was doing."

unhealthful air during temperature inversions last year.

"The validity of air quality should be of real concern, not just for the selection of a prison site, but all the state entities should become more regionalized to help lower the pollution," he said.

The council also authorized a letter to be sent to District 24 and 25 legislators asking them to support the Association of Idaho Cities legislative platform. The letter will ask for the repeal of the 5 percent annual limit on property tax collections and will request support of the liability reform coalition.

In other action, the council:

- reported that a flashing light will be installed at 18th and A streets near Big Valley School at the recommendation of the Safety Commission.
- authorized Public Works Director Eric Petersen to prepare specifications for bids for a utility truck for electrical department use. Bids will be open Feb. 3 at 7 p.m.
- approved a retail liquor sales license for off-premise consumption for Fine Interiors and Gifts.
- read a letter of commendation for police officer Terry Quinn from an Austin, Texas, resident, whose stolen rifle was recovered in Rupert. The letter thanked Quinn for his "courtesy, professional manner, and diligence" in seeking out the rifle's owner.

Late rush of shopping sets registers jingling

By The Associated Press

The nation's retailers, hoping for an improvement in slumping December sales, had their Christmas wish granted by a surge of last-minute shoppers.

"There is a Santa Claus," said Jeffrey Edelman, a retail industry analyst with the investment firm of Drexel Burnham Lambert, Inc. "There was enough incremental volume generated in that final week to help offset the shortfall that occurred up to this point."

K mart Corp., which had reported relatively slow sales in the first three weeks of December, said a jump in buying just before Christmas gave the company an 8.7 percent increase in holiday sales. K mart reported sales of $3.9 billion for the five weeks ending Dec. 31, against sales of $3.59 billion in the comparable period a year earlier.

F.W. Woolworth Co. chairman John W. Lynn called December sales "very gratifying."

Woolworth said its sales for the five weeks ended Jan. 3 rose 12 percent to $1.04 billion from $927 million in the comparable period a year earlier. The company's divisions include Woolworth, Kinney's Foot Locker and Lady Foot Locker.

The analysts said leaner inventories and the retailers' resistance to pre-Christmas markdowns helped their profit margins.

Grain futures

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain and soybean futures prices were mixed Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Multiple rumors of possible export business coming up for wheat, soybeans and corn had the market mostly higher in early dealings. But as the session wore on, corn and the distant soybean deliveries turned lower.

On the close, wheat was unchanged to 1 cent higher with the contract for delivery in March at $2.77 a bushel; corn was ¼ cent to 1¼ cent lower with March at $1.55 a bushel; oats were ¾ cent lower to 1½ cents higher with March at $1.62¼ a bushel; and soybeans were 1 cent lower to 3¾ cents higher with January at $4.94¼ a bushel.

Morals charge follows man

Abigail VanBuren
Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: I was raised by adoptive parents, born in the 1890s with old-fashioned ideas. Sex was a dirty word in our household, and as a result, at the age of 21 I was arrested on a morals charge.

I spent three or four days in jail, then was put on six months probation and the charge was filed with the FBI. I have not been in any trouble since, but this happened 38 years ago in the state of Ohio. Don't you think that after 38 years this charge should be taken off the FBI records?

I have lost a good many jobs — good jobs — over it, and I think that I have been punished enough because of this one mistake.

I have been happily married for 31 years and am desperately hoping you can help me accomplish this.

—DESPERATE

DEAR DESPERATE: Under the Freedom of Information Act, you are entitled to know if your "morals charge" record is still on file with the FBI. Send a notarized letter listing your full name, date and place of birth, and current address to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, J. Edgar Hoover Building, Washington, D.C. 20535.

Mark on the envelope: Attention: F.O.I.A. You also must include a photocopy of your driver's license or some other form of current identification. You will be advised of your "record," if it is still in existence.

DEAR ABBY: I am an executive secretary for a department head of an oil company. Two years ago, when I started working for "Mr. John Jones," I asked him how he preferred to be addressed because I have had bosses who preferred to be addressed by their first names. He said his preference was "Mr. Jones." I had no problem with that as I am from the generation of secretaries who are accustomed to more formality in the office than is now generally the custom.

My problem is with the boss's wife — who until two weeks ago I had never met personally. (We still have not been formally introduced.) When calling the office, she would always say, "Mary, this is Mrs. Jones. Is Mr. Jones there?"

Two weeks ago my boss returned from lunch. His wife was with him. They both passed my desk on their way to his office. She said, "Hello," but he didn't introduce us. I was immediately called in for dictation. They both sat there. (Still no introduction.) When she left his office, she acknowledged me with a nod.

When she phones the office, she continues to call me "Mary," while referring to herself as "Mrs. Jones." How can I deal with this on a daily basis? I've checked out volumes of etiquette books from the library and none addresses this issue.

—STEAMING IN TEXAS

DEAR STEAMING: Your boss is insensitive and rude, and so is his wife. Common sense and sensitivity are not to be found in any etiquette book.

If you like your job, and the benefits outweigh the drawbacks, adjust to the situation. Don't complain to your boss. It would only cause problems for yourself.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a good one to add to your comments about smoking: Quitting the smoking habit is the easiest thing in the world. I should know; I've done it 100 times.

—OLD SMOKEY

DEAR OLD SMOKEY: The only way to quit smoking is to simply quit smoking — no ifs, ands or butts. (EDITH ZITTLER)

Into the lion's den (North Idaho) go the Eagles

By The Times-News

COUER D'ALENE — The College of Southern Idaho's men's basketball team enters an all-too-familiar lion's den tonight when the fifth-ranked Golden Eagles visit North Idaho.

But NIC Coach Rollie Williams, whose Cardinals are 9-4 on the season and have lost two of their first four Region 18 contests, is talking like it will be NIC doing the lion-taming tonight.

"We haven't seen them this year, so we're just speculating on what they can do," he said. "We do know what they could do last year and we know their personnel. I am concerned with the number of points they've been scoring. To score the number of points that they are, they have to be running up and down the floor at lot."

CSI women — C3

Williams' teams are famous for doing the same thing, of course, so tonight's 8:30 p.m. MST game has the makings of a shootout of epic proportions.

"We don't plan to combat their fast break because we're a running club also," he said. "We won't try to slow down their offense. We'll just need to score a lot of points too."

NIC, which rarely loses at home and is 3-1 against the Eagles here during the four-year tenure of CSI Coach Fred Trenkle, finds itself in the position of having to win to most if not all of its remaining regional games to assure itself of a spot in the four-team postseason regional tournament.

"We've been inconsistent this year," said Williams. "One night a kid will have a good effort, then the next night he doesn't."

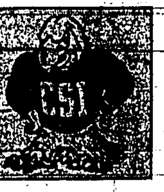
The bulk of North Idaho's offense this season has been attended to by 5-foot-7 sophomore guard Ken Goodlow, who is averaging 27.5 of the Cardinals' 87.3 points per game this season. The middle belongs to 6-7 sophomore forward Gabriel Parizzia, who is averaging 11.8 rebounds, and to 7-1 freshman center Johan Reinalda.

"I think we match up with them sizewise, but I'm not so sure about the speed aspect," said Williams. "We know they have great personnel in (sophomore center Erick) Newman and (sophomore forward Joey) Johnson and I hear that the (freshman guard Keith) Reynolds kid is a good one and he's not even starting."

Trenkle, whose ballclub is outscoring Williams' by an average of 22 points a game and is giving up an average of 19 fewer points per outing, says the Eagles won't be complacent tonight.

"I never go into North Idaho overconfident," he said. "One win on that floor in four years is enough of a warning for me."

Quick facts



Time: 8:30 p.m. MST tonight (preceded by CSI-North Idaho women's game, scheduled for 6:30 p.m. MST).

Site: North Idaho College gymnasium, Coeur d'Alene.

What it means: For CSI, it's a chance to extend its 14-game winning streak and win for just the second time in six years in Coeur d'Alene; for NIC, which has lost two of its first four Region 18 games, a win its needed to keep the Cardinals in the hunt for the postseason regional playoffs.

Season records: CSI is 14-0; North Idaho is 9-4.

Region 18 records: CSI is 3-0; NIC is 2-2.

Radio: KEZJ-FM (Twin Falls).

The coaches: Fred Trenkle, in his fourth season at CSI, has a 124-24 career record; Rollie

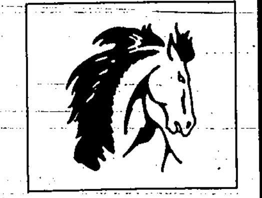
Broncos hand Bengals a loss

BSU's brawny Arnell Jones sinks 20 points in 75-63 tally

By SCOTT PEYRON
Special to The Times-News

BOISE — Where raw power is concerned, Idaho State is no match for Boise State — a fact that again was brought to light Thursday the Broncos handled the Bengals 75-63 in a Big Sky Conference basketball game in front of 5,979 fans in the Pavilion.



AP Laserphoto

ISU's Donn Holston (right) defends as BSU's Arnell Jones sets up a jump shot during Thursday's Bronco victory.

Boise State forward Arnell Jones planted his brawny self under the basket and dominated Idaho State with 20 points and 14 rebounds — seven off the offensive boards. Six-foot-9 Jeff Kelley muscled in for 12 points and seven boards as the Broncos rang up their second win over the season over their southern Idaho rival.

Boise State is now 11-2 and Idaho State is 7-7 after its loss in the two schools' Big Sky openers.

It was the Bengals' third straight defeat.

"We just don't have the physical strength," said Jim Boutin, Idaho State's second-year head coach. "When Toros Yeteneklan is chasing Arnell Jones and giving up 50 pounds . . . he's working hard and screening off, but I don't know if a guy is physically able to bend down, dig in and keep a guy like that out."

Boise State overpowered the Bengals 37-24 on the boards.

BSU Coach Boby Dye was just relieved to have gotten past a team he figured would be thirsting to acquit itself following a 70-45 tournament loss to the Broncos six weeks ago.

"They did exactly what I thought they'd do — come in here and come after us," said Dye, whose players had obviously taken note of the Bengals' recent difficulties. "You know they're going to be tough and come after you, but it's hard to convince the kids of that. It's like trying to convince fans its going to be tough. You say 'it's going to be a real tough game' and they say 'yeah, but you won the last one by 25.' "

It was clear that Idaho State had undergone major reconstructive surgery since its last visit here for the Real Dairy Classic in November. Swingman Donn Holston, who's been in an uncharacteristic shooting slump, broke free for 17 points even though he bruised his right knee late in the first half. After Holston scored a three-point play off an offensive rebound, the Bengals, who had fallen behind by 20 points, rallied to within 55-45 with 9 minutes and 4 seconds to play. But the Broncos held them at bay by hitting 12 of 13 free throws in the last 9:25.

A rebound basket by Jones had staked the Broncos to a 53-33 lead at 12:02 of the second half, but Boise State turned the ball over on four straight possessions and the Bengals ran off nine straight points.

Swingman Rodney Purvis continued his prolific play off the Idaho State bench with 15 points, but about the only other offensive support Holston got was the 11 points of postman George Davis, who was 4-for-6 from the field.

Jones, on the other hand, had loads of help. Guard Doug Usitalo hit six of seven field goal attempts, scored 14 points and on several occasions of grand larceny, he thoroughly embarrassed ISU freshman point guard Mike Chatterton. Usitalo had three steals.

Forward Eric Hayes contributed 11 points in his return from an ankle sprain and guard Chris Childs chipped in 10 points and six assists.

The Broncos, while foiling Idaho State's game plan enough to hold them 42 percent shooting, hit 27 of its 51 attempts for 53 percent.

Vandals keep power hoops alive at U of I

By routing Wildcats, 71-48

By CHRIS SCHULTE
Special to The Times-News

MOSCOW — Basketball is alive and well at the University of Idaho.

Anyone who needs evidence of that need look no farther than at Thursday night's 71-48 rout of Big Sky Conference preseason favorite Weber State.

The Wildcats and the Vandals appear to be headed in opposite directions as the Weber record dropped to 2-11 while Idaho improved to 10-4.

The game was the conference opener for both clubs.

After trailing 30-29 a the half, the Vandals rallied behind a tenacious defensive effort to outscore the visitors 41-19 in the second half.

The defensive effort was led by senior Tom Stalick, who enjoyed one of his best games of the season.

Stalick recorded a team leading four steals, all coming in the second half.

Kenny Luckett, a junior who helped the Vandals rebound from an early 6-0 deficit with 15 first-half points, remained hot as he hit for another 14 to finish with a game high 29 points.

The junior from Portland, Ore., hit an amazing 13-of-19 shots from the floor.

Weber was led by Harry Willis with 16 points, 10 of those in the first half.

Wildcat Coach Larry Farmer, obviously frustrated with his team's performance, commented, "I'm very dissapointed in the play of our team in the second half. The team is also dissapointed in the way they played."

Farmer added the loss was "an embarassment to my team and myself."

"Give credit to Idaho," he added, "their defense was very sticky and it hurt us."

For Vandal Coach Tim Floyd, it was a nice welcome to the Big Sky as his team became the first Idaho squad in three years to knock off the Wildcats.

"We played pretty good defense in the second half," he said.

Idaho allowed Weber only six points in the first 14 minutes of the second half while scoring 28 itself.

Many of the Vandal baskets came off "cheap transition baskets created by the defense," Floyd said.

Floyd has been preaching defense ever since arriving at the University and was not dissapointed Thursday.

"We played a really bad first half," he said. "We turned over the ball too many times (12) and were trying too hard to make things happen. We need to play two halves like the second tonight to be a good team."

Besides Luckett's 29 points, Andrew Jackson was the lone other Vandal in double figures with 10 points.

The Vandals held a surprising 33-31 edge on the boards against the taller Wildcats, seven of them by Stalick.

The game came as a surprise for Floyd.

"I would have taken a tip in win at the buzzer, but our guys did work hard since the (Washington State) loss the other night, but I was surprised."

Benscoter's shooting fuels Bliss girls past Richfield, 39-29

Girls basketball

BLISS — Accuracy from the foul line and the inside scoring punch of Shea Benscoter fueled Bliss in the second half Thursday as the Bears rallied from an early deficit to down Richfield 39-29 in a crucial Northside Conference girls' basketball contest.

Benscoter, a 5-foot-11 center, picked up a pair of quick fouls to start the game and sat out much of the first and second quarters and Richfield took full advantage of her absence.

But the senior Bear pivot returned to score four of her team's last six points over the final three minutes of the opening half, then opened the second half with three consecutive buckets. Benscoter's first tally after intermission brought Bliss back from deficits that ranged as high as six early in the second period into its first lead at 16-15.

"Shea came out in the second half to score," said Bliss Coach Diana Butler. "It's the first time all season that she's really had it in her head that she wanted to score."

The win, the 11th in a row for Bliss, put the Bears in a position to all but wrap up the Northside Conference title with a win over Carey in Carey tonight.

It was a lot tougher for the Bears, now 11-3 and 8-0 in conference, in the early going.

After a ties at two and four, Jennifer Bell — who scored Richfield's first eight points from the low post — shot the Tigers into a four-point advantage as the second period began.

The spread mushroomed to six points some two minutes later as Annie Whitesell twice found the range for the Tigers and only freshman guard Emmy Sears, who ended the night with 10 points, could score for Bliss.

Emmy's junior sister Pauline, the game's leading scorer with 13, pulled Bliss within four before Renee Hiatt, who paced the Tiger effort with nine points, moved the Richfield lead back to 14-8. But Hiatt's free throw was the last Tiger counter before the halftime break as the conference leaders cut within a point.

"We choked in the first half," Butler added. "I talked to them at half time. I told them it wasn't our most important game and we settled down. The offense that we used we made up at halftime."

The offensive strategy to which Butler referred was an adjustment that droped the outside shooting game from the wings in favor of cuts into the lane. The result was immediate fould trouble for Richfield.

Although Bliss outscored its rivals over the third quarter, the first 10-point bulge didn't come until Jennifer Kast scored over a double team with 6 minutes and 12 seconds left to play.

Back-to-back baskets from Tiger guards Hiatt and Cheryl Jensen narrowed the Bliss lead to eight before the Sears sisters combined for a seven-of-eight foul shooting performance to effectively shut down the Tiger threat.

The loss dropped Richfield to 9-4 on the season and into third place in the Northside at 5-2.

Spartans face hard tests after their 20-day hiatus

By STEVE CRUMP
Times-News sports editor

IDAHO FALLS — It's been 20 days since Minico High School's boys' basketball team has played a game, and the Spartans aren't going to have much time to shake the kinks out when their season resumes here tonight.

Minico will take on fourth-ranked Bonneville here tonight and third-rated Rigby in Rupert Saturday night in a pair of Gem State Conference games that could decide the eventual outcome of the league's race.

"We're really into a tough part of our schedule," said Minico Coach Craig Dexter, whose Spartans have won four of their first five games of the season and sit in second place in the league standings with a 4-1 record, one-half game behind the Bees and the Trojans. "We're not putting all of our eggs in one basket (with this weekend's games), but we really feel good about the way we're playing."

The outcome of this weekend's games won't have any effect on the part of the Spartans' schedule that counts, Minico's Region III games. The Spartans, who are tied with Pocatello for first place in the regional standings that will determine who hosts the postseason tournament, won't play another Region III opponent until Jan. 17.

But Dexter and his "young veteran" team are very much in the hunt for the school's first-ever GSC title, and will continue to be if they can beat Bonneville, or Rigby, or both.

"We're a smaller team than either of them, but I think we

Boys Prep Game of the Week

FAIRFIELD — Two teams with 17 wins and two losses between them will get together here tonight to begin the process of elimination in Northside Conference boys' basketball.

Camas County, 9-1, and Dietrich, 8-1, will collide at 8 p.m. with the winner taking over the undisputed lead in a league race that still has a month to run.

"It's a big game for both teams, but I think it's a little bigger game for Camas," said Dietrich Coach Norm Cook, whose Blue Devils, like the Mushers, are 3-0 in the league standings. "This one's at their place, which means they have to win it. We still have six of our last eight (regular-season) games at home, including Camas and Richfield, and we're pretty tough to beat at home."

"It's a game we need to win," said first-year Camas Coach Mike Hansen. "I don't know exactly what to expect because I've never seen them play. I'm just going by what people say, and the guys I've talked to all say you have to stop (Dietrich senior guard-forward Alan) Stoddard."

Neither coach is treating tonight's contest as a title game, and for good

Idaho Falls outshoots Bruins, 75-57

By The Times-News

Boys basketball

IDAHO FALLS — Twin Falls was outshot 54 percent to 41 percent from the floor here Thursday night in dropping its fifth straight Gem State Conference boys' basketball contest of the season, 75-57 to Idaho Falls.

"It was far and away the worst game we've played this season," said Bruin Coach John Astorquia, whose ballclub fell to 2-5 on the year and 0-5 in conference. "I thought we had a really good shot of winning this game on the basis of the way we've played in practice this week. But we just didn't execute."

The Bruins dug themselves a 19-10 first-quarter hole before battling back to within three points midway through the second period after switching defenses.

"Our defense was bad early," said Astorquia. "We started out man, and we didn't hold our hands up and we gave up a lot of second shots. So we went to the zone and it was effective. We cut it to five (points) at halftime, but we shot so poorly and we gave them so many shots off the floor that we lost four points in the third quarter."

The loss came despite a commanding advantage by the Bruins in rebounding, 34-25. Idaho Falls played without 6-foot-3 senior center Jeff Larcon, the team's leading rebounder.

The bright spot for the Bruins was the performance of Jay Dee Yergensen, who scored 15 points included three three-point goals. Gabe Ostyn added 12 points for Twin Falls.

Sophomore Darin Munk, who hit four three-pointers, led the Tigers with 18 points, while teammate Kegan Kane added 16.

Warming in the last quarter, Hansen succeeded in shaving a 22-point Blue Devil lead to 10, but could get no closer.

reason. Dietrich still nine games to play, Camas eight. And defending league champ Richfield, whose 53-49 loss to the Blue Devils last Saturday night set up tonight's showdown, is still in the hunt with just two conferences losses.

"At the beginning of the season, I thought a split (with Camas) would give us a good chance to win (the conference title)," said Cook, whose ballclub lost the conference championship last year by losing twice to the Mushers. "Last year we lost to them because we played scared — scared to win a championship. They're bigger than us, with (6-foor-2 senior forward Blake) Bennett and (6-4 senior center Travis) Jones and they have the (Dennis) Robbins kid (6-0 senior guard) who shoots the ball extremely well."

Cook said he hasn't been happy the way his Devils, whose only loss of the season came to Declo in the Oakley Invitational Tournament last month, have been playing for the last three weeks.

"We haven't done anything very well lately," he said. "We've missed a ton of layins and we're not executing and rebounding. Right now we're just frustrated. It's become a mental thing. But we're playing real hard — that's the one good thing I can say."

By contrast, Hansen said his Mushers, whose only loss came to Richfield in the title game of last month's Camas County Classic, are at the top of their game.

"We played the Wood River juniors (a 60-50 Camas win) Tuesday night, and it was by far the best game we've played this season," he said. "We're just jelling as a team. The kids are seeing each other (on the court) and they're playing well intensity-wise. Wood River came out physical, and our kids came right back at them. The aggression is there."

If he has a complaint, Hansen said, it's that his ballclub is too aggressive at times.

"Patience is still what we need," he said. "That's what we emphasize on offense, having patience and letting something open up. There are times when we're not doing that. We need improvement there, and we need a little more consistency as far as shooting is concerned."

Robbins leads the Mushers in scoring with a 16.5-point-per-game average, while Jones is averaging 13 points and is virtually tied with Bennett as Camas' leading rebounder.

For Dietrich, Stoddard — the Magic Valley's leading scorer last year — is averaging 21.5 points and 12 boards a game. The former figure is off last year's 25-point clip, but Cook said that's attributable to the fact that Stoddard doesn't have to score as many points as last year.

"We're a much more balanced offense team this year," he said. "(Junior guard) Curt Jensen is averaging 13 points and we have several other players who are capable of scoring a lot of points.

probably match up better with Bonneville than we do with Rigby," said Dexter, whose has seen the Bees play three times this year and has watched the Trojans twice. "Against Bonneville we're pretty even, but against Rigby there's one position where we're really outsized and outskilled."

That position is center, where 6-foot-9 senior Rigby center Ryan Winn leads the Gem State in rebounding.

"I think the key to both games is controlling the tempo," said Dexter. "Unless we're able to do that, we won't beat them."

Bonneville Coach Mike Jorgensen, whose 6-2 Bees lost narrowly to top-ranked Meridian on the road 10 days ago after handing Rigby its only loss of the year, said a look at the conference stats shows his ballclub will have to play good defense tonight.

"I haven't seen Minico this year, but the thing I remember about them is how good a shooter (6-2 junior guard Jack) Bagley is," Jorgensen said. "And he's their third-leading scorer."

Rigby, Bonnevile and Minico rank 1-2-3 in the Gem State in team offense, which portends plenty of scoring tonight and Saturday. But Dexter isn't sure how much those numbers mean at this point.

"It's a pretty fair gauge and you'd be a fool to say that doesn't mean anything, but I'm not sure it's a real true indicator," he said. "The three teams haven't had too many common opponents and Rigby has played a heck of a lot of games at home."

Dexter said Bonneville has impressed him more than Rigby, the defending state Class A-2 champion which moved up to A-1 this year.

"I think Bonneville's the better team," he said. "In the games I've seen, in my mind they're the team to beat."

But the Trojans, Dexter points out, are a good defensive team — statistically the best in the league.

"We're going to have to play a good game to beat them," he said.

Rigby Coach Elliott Anderson hasn't seen the Spartans play this season, but like Jorgensen he's expecting a shootout.

"We're pretty balanced," said Anderson, whose ballclub is 6-1 on the year. "We have had five kids (scoring) in double figures this year. We've had some poor outings in the last couple of weeks, though."

Anderson, whose teams have won four state A-2 titles, said he rates his current defense as only fair.

"If we have an strong point, it would probably be rebounding," said Anderson, whose team leads the league on the boards behind Winn, 6-5 senior forward Dale Munson and 6-3 senior forward Theron Hinckley. "But I know Minico is an awful good rebounding team too."

Spartans reluctantly top Bruins, 45-37

By BRAD BRELAND

RUPERT — Thursday night's Gem State Conference girls' basketball game between Twin Falls and Minico won't make the Bruins' highlight films. It probably won't make the Spartans' film library either.

The Spartans overcame a four-point first quarter for a 45-37 come-from-behind victory over Twin Falls.

On the other side of the court, Twin Falls Coach Paul Stover was not pleased with his troops' performance.

"We haven't really played well in about three weeks," he said. "The kids have totally lost confidence and the shooting percentage will bear that."

The loss in the Region III contest was a blow to the Bruins, whose regional record fell to 2-4 and dropped Twin Falls out of the all-important third place in the standings. The Spartans, now 2-3 in regional competition, now have the inside track for one of the remaining host spots in the postseason regional tournament. That tournament among the five teams of Region III in turn determines representatives to the state Class A-1 tourney.

Twin Falls missed numerous opportunities to put the Spartans away early in the contest driving the ball inside, but missing easy shots and Minico turned those misses into points at the other end of the court.

Minico had a hard time getting on the board in the first quarter, going scoreless in a four-minute span while the Bruins kept increasing their advantage.

A pair of free throws by Tanya Pearson gave Twin Falls a seven-point advantage after the first quarter.

By the time the Spartans' total reached double digits, 12 minutes had elapsed and Twin Falls still had a seven point lead.

With 90 seconds left in the first half, Minico stormed back to take the lead.

A free throw by Carolyn Robbins, two free throws from Rose Stuart and a basket by Tina Stroud led Minico on a 10-2 spurt in the closing minutes of the second quarter.

Minico burst out of the gate in the third quarter increasing it's lead to eight points on a Lorna McPherson free throw and bucket.

Twin Falls stayed close however, chipping away at the lead and cutting it to four points in the fourth quarter.

Michelle Lowry took the ball to the left side and bombed away from the corner hitting the bucket and dashing any hopes that the Bruins had for the victory.

Renae Plankey led all scorers pouring in 16 points for the Bruins while McPherson had a dozen for the Spartans.

The victory improved Minico's season and conferences records to 6-7. Twin Falls fell to 7-6 for the season adn 7-5 in conference.

By The Associated Press

Top 20 basketball

MADISON, Wis. — Ken Norman hit an 18-foot jump shot at the buzzer to give 12th-ranked Illinois a 68-66 Big Ten basketball victory over Wisconsin on Thursday night.

Wisconsin's Mike Heineman was called for traveling with three seconds left, setting up Norman's basket. Norman took an inbounds pass the length of the court from Doug Altenberger and hit the shot from just inside the free throw circle as the horn sounded.

Navy 62

ANNAPOLIS, Md. — Richmond held foul-plagued Navy star David Robinson to eight points Thursday night and scored the game's final 13 points to upset the 15th-ranked Midshipmen 64-62 in a Colonial Athletic Association basketball game.

Led by Peter Woolfolk, who scored 11 of his game-high 24 points in the final 6½ minutes, Richmond rallied from a 62-51 deficit.

Indiana 79
Michigan State 60

EAST LANSING, Mich. — Senior guard Steve Alford scored 22 of his game-high 33 points in the second half Thursday night as fourth-ranked Indiana rallied from a six-point halftime deficit and routed Michigan State 79-60 in a Big Ten basketball game.

LAWRENCE, Kan. — Danny Manning led a rally for No. 19 Kansas in a 67-64 victory Thursday night over eighth-ranked Temple, giving the Jayhawks their 40th straight home court triumph.

The 6-foot-11 Manning hit his first three-point goal in three tries this season and made eight of nine field goal attempts as Kansas ended an 11-game winning streak for Temple, 13-2.

North Carolina 98
Maryland 65

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. — Maryland Coach Bob Wade sang nothing but praises for North Carolina freshman J.R. Reid but Tar Heel coach Dean Smith is still waiting for the 6-foot-10 center to mature.

On offense, Reid produced 19 points as the Tar Heels cruised to a 98-65 Atlantic Coast Conference victory over Maryland on Thursday night.

Big Sky Conference Basketball

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Tom Domako tossed in 23 points and Ray Willis added 18 to lead Montana State to an 81-62 victory over Northern Arizona Thursday night in the Big Sky Conference basketball opener for both teams.

Montana State, the defending Big Sky tournament champion, jumped out to an early lead against the Lumberjacks but was unable to put them away until the final 10 minutes of the contest.

Northern Arizona, the defending regular-season league champion, closed to within 45-40 with 14:46 remaining before the Bobcats exploded on a 15-6 run during the next four minutes.

The Lumberjacks got no closer than 10 points the rest of the way.

Shy on numbers, CSI women visit Cardinals

By The Times-News

College basketball

COEUR D'ALENE — The College of Southern Idaho's women may be on mission impossible tonight when they try to tame the North Idaho Cardinals in a Region 18 battle.

At best, says Coach Ben Stroud "it's going to be a battle."

The Golden Eagle women are down to eight players, which will be tough against the expected North Idaho all-court pressure, and don't come close to matching up heightwise with the Cardinals.

"They have one girl 6-2 and several others tall girls," Stroud said. "Plus they have one excellent guard."

CSI, currently 6-5 overall and 2-1 in the region, will have two major points it must meet, Stroud said.

"We have to handle the pressure of full-court defense at times and they'll switch to several defenses, like from a 1-3-1 to man to a 2-3 and our offense is going to have to adjust," the coach said. "Plus, we will have to crash the boards like crazy. We'll be sending all five to the defensive glass."

"And defensively, we're going to have our hands full. They are a very potent team. North Idaho beat Utah Tech up there and Utah Tech beat us by many, many points," he said of a non-regional 105-53 wipeout last weekend. "We are not that bad and Utah Tech probably isn't quite that good. But it shows this is going to be a battle," Stroud concluded.

NCAA athletic directors defy presidents, cut scholarships

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A group of athletic directors, in an unexpected show of defiance, rebuffed the Presidents' Commission and refused to withdraw several items from the NCAA convention agenda Thursday, instead passing measures reducing the number of maximum scholarships in both football and basketball.

Delegates also banned boosters from any participation in recruiting.

The ban on boosters' involvement in recruiting came after the athletic directors cut football scholarship limits from 30 per year to 25.

Later, voting on another measure the presidents wanted withdrawn, Division I schools voted to reduce from 15 to 13 the maximum number of scholarships in men's and women's basketball.

In a further reduction in basketball, Division I schools voted to limit to two the number of volunteer and-or graduate assistant coaches.

"Most of us don't have enough chairs on our bench to handle the number of coaches we have," said Roy Kramer of Vanderbilt in urging that the rule be passed.

The measure to ban boosters entirely from the recruiting process was passed virtually without opposition. The legislation bans supporters of college athletic teams from even telephoning or writing to a high school prospect.

"It will enable us to tell our recruiting interests they can do absolutely nothing," Georgia football Coach Vince Dooley said of the new rule.

Chiefs sack coach Mackovic

JOHN MACKOVIC
Took K.C. to playoffs

By JERRY NACHTIGAL
The Associated Press

Pro football

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Coach John Mackovic, who led the Kansas City Chiefs to their first NFL playoff game in 15 years, was fired Thursday after his fourth season with the team, owner Lamar Hunt announced.

"The chemistry of an organization is an intangible that is crucial to its success. My evaluation is that our football team is lacking that ingredient," Hunt said at a news conference at Arrowhead Stadium.

"There is no perfect formula for becoming the best in pro football. We'd all like to think we have the right answers. In this case, I have to make a judgment, and I have reluctantly concluded that a head coaching change is necessary at this time."

Hunt said there would be no immediate decision on Mackovic's replacement.

"Regarding a new coach, our plan is to go to work on that immediately and to take whatever time is needed to find the best man possible," he said.

Mackovic, who was not at the news conference Thursday night, has a year remaining on his contract. Hunt said the remaining year would be honored as Mackovic decides what he will do with his career.

Mackovic compiled a 30-34 regular-season record with Kansas City. The Chiefs' offense, which was Mackovic's area of expertise, placed last in the league this season.

In finishing 10-6 this season, the Chiefs were tapped as a wild card team for the National Football League playoffs. Kansas City lost its playoff game to the New York Jets.

Mackovic denied Wednesday he was considering the head coaching job at the University of Arizona. He cut short a visit to the West Coast as well as plans to scout the East-West Shrine Game to return to Kansas City and discuss the coaching staff and other issues with club officials.

The Chiefs' special teams coach, Frank Gansz, resigned Wednesday, saying he had accomplished all he could as a special teams coach.

Downing, DeCinces reach accord with Angels

Baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — The California Angels signed free agents Brian Downing and Doug DeCinces on Thursday and continued talking with Bob Boone, while other teams, facing a midnight deadline, scrambled to retain their own players.

Tim Raines, Andre Dawson and Lance Parrish seemed certain to leave their clubs, while Bob Horner, Rich Gedman and Ron Guidry were among the other 12 free agents with uncertain futures.

Teams that did not retain their players by the deadline could not re-sign them until May 1. Last year, no free agents went past a similar deadline.

Downing, 36, batted .267 with 20 home runs and 95 runs batted in last season as the Angels' left fielder. DeCinces, 35, hit .256 with 26 homers and 96 RBI as the team's third baseman.

Downing signed a two-year contract at $900,000 per season with an option year at $850,000. Downing previously had a three-year contract worth $2,425,000.

"I told my teammates I was going for two years. It was particularly important to me . . . I told (agent Tom) Reich not to even call me until they offered two years," Downing said.

Said Angels General Manager Mike Port: "We're delighted to sign Brian, who has contributed greatly to our club. He is the heart, soul and enthusiasm on the club."

THE ACES®

BOBBY WOLFF

"An old custom is so sacred when it is bad!"

— Hector Berlioz

More than a few players would not hesitate over their play to trick two. Too often have they been chastised for not returning their partners' leads.

West leads the spade deuce to East's ace, and the defense is at the crossroads. What happens if East returns his partner's lead?

South ducks the spade return to West's queen, but the game is now secure. South knocks out the club ace as early as he can, and the defenders are held to only three tricks.

East should do some thinking when he wins his spade ace. West's spade deuce tells East that both West and South have four spades each, and if South has a spade honor (most likely), the spade continuation is a wasted effort.

A much better play is the shift to the jack of hearts, a play that wins whenever West holds the king or ace.

In today's layout, the heart shift dooms the game. The heart suit is established before the ace of clubs is gone, and the defenders take five tricks instead of three.

Jana Jae returns to musical roots

Nationally known country fiddler will play for posse benefit concert

By CATHERINE ARNOLD
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — When Jana Jae plays her celebrated fiddle in two benefit performances for the Twin Falls Mounted Sheriff's Posse Saturday, it will be a homecoming.

Jae, whose maiden name was Jana Meyer, went to junior high and high school in Twin Falls. Though her mother, a classical violinist, began Jae's training at age 2½, it was during her years in the Magic Valley that the young artist's talent was nurtured and her enthusiasm for a career in music blossomed.

"Those years where good growing years," she said in a recent telephone interview. "When I first tried out for orchestra in 7th grade I remember thinking that it would be extremely difficult. I had played clarinet in the school band in Fruitland, but had not had orchestra experience. I was so nervous. But I guess Mother had done a good job of getting me ready because they gave me first chair.

"I was really excited from then on. My orchestra experience in Twin Falls was very inspirational. Mr. Smith was the director through all those years ... he was an outstanding director. He encouraged me to go to music camps. We had tryouts all the time so you had to stay sharp. There were always people challenging you for your chair."

Jae spent several summers attending music camps, including Interlaken in New York and the International String Conference, both on scholarships.

Jae credits her family, especially her mother, Betty Hopper, now of Fruitland, with inspiring and sustaining her musical ambitions. "Mother kept it very interesting. She kept me practicing and performing. She practiced with me at first and then once I started I'd practice for another hour or two. Through junior high and high school there were all the other distractions, games and wanting to be a cheerleader. I remember being torn sometimes. But I always put music first and I think it was because of Mother."

> 'She was a very good violinist. She put a spark into the orchestra.'
> — Richard Smith,
> former TFHS orchestra director

Mrs. Hopper recalled the early inklings of her daughter's talent. "By George, she played 'Banjo and Fiddle' by Kroll. She played the solo part with the orchestra and I have never been able to play that. That was hard. I knew when she did that effortlessly, like a duck swimming in water, that she was off to a really good start."

Jae remembers working very hard on that piece, played in her sophomore year.

Her grandfather, Frank Sprague, gets credit for introducing her to country fiddle playing. Her "step-daddy" Joe Hopper helped her polish what she calls "show fiddling" technique.

Coached by her family, Jae began participating in country fiddle contests when she was 12. Her sister Cherie was also a musician and fiddled competitively.

Jae said, "The fiddle contests were also a big inspiration because fiddle players come from all over the country. You tape them and want to learn to do the songs they do and learn their style. There are the jam sessions and the many, many hours you spend just playing for fun."

Although she won the National Oldtime Fiddler's Contest in Weiser in 1973 and 1974 and has a "houseful" of trophies from other competitions, she plays down the competitive aspect of fiddling. "You don't go to show everybody up; you go to share and to learn new things. You learn so much and you have a chance to express your own style."

Jae learned at an early age that audiences responded to her combination of classic violin and down-home fiddle playing. She seldom performs without including both.

As Miss Twin Falls she won the talent competition in the Miss Idaho pageant by playing Vitale's "Chaconne," then, ripping off her formal gown to reveal a Western costume underneath, she finished her performance with "Orange Blossom Special."

In 1974 Jae met and married Buck Owens. She was the first female member of his band "The Buckaroos." She played with them for several years, becoming a regular on "Hee Haw." It was a boon to her career, but not an easy time for her personally.

"We were together longer than the newspapers say," she said. "But it just didn't work because there was too much business mixed up with the personal end ... contracts galore. I just couldn't handle all the complications."

Jae has been on her own musically for 8 years and likes it that way. She spends half the time travelling with her band, which is based in Tulsa, Okla.

A few years ago they played in the town of Harlingen, Texas. Jae was surprised to find an old friend in the crowd. It was Richard Smith, her mentor in Twin Falls, who had retired from teaching and was living in Harlingen.

In a telephone interview Smith said, "I saw her on TV and that's the first we knew what she was doing for sure. When she was coming here we saw an ad in the paper and as soon as she got here I went down to see her. She knew me right away. We had a real good reunion."

Smith remembered Jae well from her school days. "She was a very good violinist," he said. "She really put a spark into the orchestra. That girl was always happy and smiling and pleasant, never seemed to be down, always up."

Jae has played on numerous television shows. Currently she appears on "Nashville Now" and has several projects in the works for the Nashville Network.

She has recorded five albums which have had limited national distribution. She is working on one now that

Volunteer sheriff's posse slates fund-raiser

TWIN FALLS — The Twin Falls County Mounted Sheriff's Posse is sponsoring country fiddler Jana Jae in two fund-raising concerts, at 7 and 9 p.m., Saturday at the Filer High School Auditorium.

Jae will headline an hour of classical, country hoedown, pops, bluegrass and jazz music.

She will be accompanied by a band from Washington state, led by Jerry Owens. Joe Hopper, a former Magic Valley resident, will play guitar and fiddle.

The posse holds a fund-raiser every other year to raise money to refurbish uniforms, flags and special tack for their parade and drill team. Past concerts have netted as much as $1,600.

Drillmaster Jim Moore, who has been a member of the group for 22 years, estimated that there are 32 active members ranging in age from 20 to 73. Each member rides his or her own horse.

"The posse was formed in 1945 to aid Civil Defense when they thought that the coast might be bombed and people would be moving inland," he said. "Of course, that's not what we do now."

In the 1950s and '60s, the posse was active as a search and rescue team. But Moore said that snowmobiles, motorcycles and off-road vehicles have gradually replaced them in many cases.

The posse is occasionally called in to aid the Twin Falls County Search and Rescue Unit. They also augment the Twin Falls County Sheriff's Department when they are needed for crowd or traffic control. They serve in this capacity every year at the Twin Falls County Fair and Rodeo.

But it is the fun of working together with other horse people and preparing for parades and drill competitions that inspires posse members to load up their horses once a week for five months of the year and meet in Filer for drill practice.

The members are volunteers who pay their own expenses to represent Twin Falls County at fairs, parades and rodeos around Idaho and northern Nevada.

Their dedication has brought them home with the first place trophy from the Idaho State Sheriff's Posse Association Competition in four out of the last seven years, according to Moore.

Tickets are $7 and are available at the Music Center, 221 Main Ave. E. in Twin Falls.

Winwood grabs Grammy nominations

RICHARD DE ATLEY
The Associated Press

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — The old guard of pop and rock reaped top Grammy nominations Thursday, including Steve Winwood with five and Peter Gabriel and Paul Simon with four each.

Jazzman Wynton Marsalis received four nominations, while Barbra Streisand and Janet Jackson, sister of Michael, were among those receiving three nominations each, along with Robert Palmer and Dionne Warwick.

Nominated for best new artist were Glass Tiger, Bruce Hornsby and the Range, Nu Shooz, Simply Red and Timbuk 3.

"Wow, this is unbelievable," said Hornsby, 32, from his San Fernando Valley home.

Winwood, 38, was nominated for record and album of the year for his "Higher Love" single and his "Back in the High Life" LP. He also was nominated for both pop male vocal performance and for song of the year as well as producer of the year.

Winwood's career spans more than two decades. His reedy voice is on such rock classics as "Gimme Some Loving," with the Spencer Davis Group and "Dear Mr. Fantasy" with Traffic.

Gabriel's "Sledgehammer" was nominated for record and song of the year, while his "So" LP was nominated for album of the year. Gabriel, 36, also was nominated for best rock male vocal performance.

Gabriel is the founder and former leader of the British group Genesis. His flamboyance as leader of the group included shaving his head and dressing like a flower on stage.

Simon's four nominations were for his "Graceland" album, an LP laced with the sounds of South African township rhythms. He received nominations for album of the year and best pop male vocal performance. The song "Graceland" was nominated for song of the year, and Simon received a nomination for producer of the year.

Simon said he thought the album would be nominated, but said he was surprised the song "Graceland" was. "It's got to be the first time for a song that's not a hit," he said by telephone from Washington.

It was the most nominations for Simon, 46, since his "Bridge Over Troubled Water" album, which won six Grammys in 1970. Simon has won 10 Grammys during his career, four of them shared with former partner Art Garfunkel.

Simon, a singer-songwriter who began a duet career in the late 1950s with Garfunkel that led to such 1960s hits as "Sounds of Silence" and "Mrs. Robinson," embarked on a solo career in the early 1970s.

Miss Jackson's nominations were for album, best female rhythm and blues performance, and as a songwriter for "What Have You Done For Me Lately?"

Jimmy "Jam" Harris, who with Terry Lewis produced Miss Jackson's "Control" album, said of Miss Jackson, "She's the latest and the greatest in the Jackson family."

Miss Streisand, who has won seven Grammys since 1963, was nominated for album of the year for "The Broadway Album," as co-producer, for best female pop vocal performance, and for best instrumental arrangement accompanying vocals.

Miss Warwick, whose performance on "That's What Friends Are For" reunited her talents with those of songwriter Burt Bacharach, was nominated for record of the year. She was nominated with Elton John, Gladys Knight and Stevie Wonder for best pop performance by a duo or group. She also was nominated for best pop female vocal for her "Friends" album. She has won four Grammys in her career.

Trumpeter Marsalis' four nominations include two in jazz: One as an instrumentalist, the other as a group leader. He also received nominations as a classical trumpeter and as a composer

'Mapping the West' series begins at library

By SHANNON CORPRON
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — "Mapping the West," a literary exploration of the culturalization of the American West, will be presented by the Twin Falls Public Library as its first offering in a nationwide reading and discussion program, "Let's Talk About It."

The discussion series, which begins Wednesday at 7 p.m. and will continue on alternating Wednesdays for 10 weeks, is sponsored by the Idaho State Library through a grant from the Idaho Humanities Council and the Idaho Library Association.

"The intent of the program is to give people who are out of school an opportunity to be exposed to reading material they might not be familiar with," said Linda Mitchell, coordinator of the "Let's Talk About It" program at the library.

Mitchell said the seminars are designed to "make the experience (of reading the books) come alive." A scholar will give a formal presentation on each book in the series, which participants will read in advance. The presentation will then be followed by informal discussion groups, she said.

"It's for people who have said, 'Gee, I'd like to get out and be exposed to some new ideas and material and hear what other people have to say about it,' " said Mitchell.

"The success of the program seems to stem from the fact that, out of school, adults eagerly respond when given the opportunity to read and discuss good books."

William Studebaker, author of four volumes of poetry and English instructor at the College of Southern Idaho, will lead the discussion for "Death Comes for the Archbisishop," the first book in the "Mapping the West" series.

Studebaker said that all the novels in the series are "thought-provoking" and deal with historical events "that made the West what it is.

"We Westerners are a type," said Studebaker. "The experience of settling the West has molded the people who live here. When we study Western literature, we're studying our own psychic development and personalities."

"Death Comes for the Archbishop," written by novelist Willa Cather and published in 1927, follows the conflict of two priests who come from Europe and must each in his

Classical guitarist in CSI concert

By SHANNON CORPRON
Times-News correspondent

TWIN FALLS — Erik Tingstad, a musician billed as a master of classical and steel string guitar, will appear in concert Thursday at 7 p.m. at the College of Southern Idaho.

Tingstad's self-produced debut album, "On the Links" (1983), received national airplay and was a Top Album Pick in Billboard Magazine. Windham Hill recording artist George Winston called it "one of the most beautiful and consistent guitar albums there is."

His second solo LP, "Urban Guitar" (1984), also received national airplay and widened his listening audience.

Tingstad recently teamed with instrumentalist Nancy Rumbel to produce "The Gift: Acoustic Offerings for the Holiday Season." This third album features traditional and original Christmas compositions played on guitar, English horn, oboe, piano, ocarina and chimes.

Tingstad, a Seattle area resident, became interested in music at the age of 8 after hearing a young friend play "House of the Rising Sun" on a guitar.

By the time he was 12, Tingstad was playing in both a neighborhood band and a school jazz band, and had won an all-city talent contest.

In his mid-teens, Tingstad heard Northwest acoustic-jazz guitarist Ralph Towner in concert, who inspired him to buy a classical guitar and enroll in guitar classes at Western Washington University in Bellingham.

He studied classical guitar by day and played rock music by night until he was 21, when he struck out to be a classical concert guitarist.

Tingstad's music has been described as a "sparkling impressionism somewhere between the eccentricity of John Fahey and the artful new Windham Hill school."

The performance, to be held in the Eagle's Nest of the Taylor Administration Building, is sponsored by the ASCSI Student Senate. CSI students will be admitted free; admission is $1 for other area students and $2 for non-students.

will be more widely promoted. Though she loves to play a variety of musical styles, ranging from jazz to bluegrass, "pops" to classical, she says her next recording effort will have to have commercial appeal, which for her means sticking close to country.

Music continues to be a family affair for Jae. Performing with her tomorrow night will be her stepfather, Joe Hopper, who taught agricultural courses at Filer High School for 12 years and has performed professionally around the region.

"He is a fantastic guitarist," she said. "He does a lot of different styles. He picked up show fiddling when he was stationed in the Army down south."

Jae's two children have also taken the family passion to heart. Daughter Syndi Greis, a high school senior, and son Matt Greis, a classical guitar major at the University of Southern California, have sung and fiddled in their mother's show during school breaks.

Music is a way of life for Jae, but also a business. "It takes a lot more than just one person in order to be on top of the national scene. All the cogs of the wheel have to fit together: a good recording company, manager, booking agent, band and a good show all at once.

"In my independence, I have really grown a lot and progressed and put an entire show together. I like the independence but it still takes a lot of people to get the results."

What's in the future? Jae said, "I keep feeling like I'm progressing. So as long as I feel like I'm progressing I guess I will continue to entertain and do this."

own way adapt to a culturally barren new land.

Cather was interested in immigrants who came from an "extensive cultural environment" in Europe, to America, which was "a country virtually without a culture," said Studebaker.

"Compromises have formed the American," he said. "They adapted to the frontier and the frontier adapted to them."

Studebaker is also the scheduled speaker for another book in the series, "The Man Who Killed the Deer" by Frank Waters.

Other books to be discussed in later weeks include "Angle of Repose" by Wallace Stegner, with guest speaker Richard Widmayer of the College of Idaho; a joint discussion of "Yonnondio" by Tillie Olsen and "Letters of a Woman Homesteader" by Elinore Stewart, with guest speaker Karyn Reidell of CSI; and "English Creek" by Ivan Doig, with guest speaker Dean Pettinger, also of CSI.

Library director Arlan Call said there are several other "Let's Talk About It" themes which may be presented in the future. Book and seminar topics which have been explored in other libraries throughout the state are women's biographies, the family and working in America, he said.

"Mapping the West" sessions are free. Copies of the books used in the series are available upon registration at the library. For more information, call the library at 733-2964.

What's what

Artist in the cold

The great French sculptor Rodin in 1917 applied to the government of France for a room in a museum wherein he might stay warm while he worked. The government turned him down, though it made sure his remarkable statues were stored in such warm quarters. That year in an attic room elsewhere, Rodin froze to death.

First ramshackly little sheds built on rooftops to cover stairwells were called "penthouses." The word has come a long way.

Those who know their dogs contend a good German Shepherd mated with a wolf tends to produce a nervous, shy and even cowardly canine. The German Shepherd is not an ancient breed closely related to the wolf, they say. It's recent, purposely crossbred to bring out that wolf look.

BLENDER

You can buy a blender in India, all right, but to do so you ask for a "mixy-grinder."

Benjamin Franklin is credited with a greater variety of accomplishments than any other American, I think. But you can tell what he was most proud of. On his tombstone, only this: "Benjamin Franklin, Printer."

Q. Which of the Americas is the wider continent at its widest – North or South?
A. South.

SOAP

Another mental quirk common to many but unrealized by most: In the shower, a newly opened bar of soap seems to get us cleaner than a bar already half used up.

Can you dispute the fact that there are 31,557,600 seconds in an average year? Neither can I. Not if you consider Leap Year in a four-year average.

Q. What takes egg stains off silver?
A. Damp salt.

Algae grows on earthenware flower pots. It's green. The gardener habitually handling same really does get a "green thumb."

Tax on $4,000 annual income in 1913 was one cent.

One Japanese term for motorcycle gangs translates "violently running tribes."

1986 2nd-best year in box office history

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Moviegoers paid $3.8 billion for tickets in 1986, with high-flying "Top Gun" the top earner, and its studio, Paramount, the most successful outlet in the second-best box-office year ever.

After "Top Gun," which earned $171 million, other best-sellers included "'Crocodile' Dundee," with $122.9 million; "The Karate Kid, Part II," with $114.8 million; "The Color Purple," with $95.4 million; and "Back to School," $90.4 million.

"In the established studios, as they say in the industry, quality control is better," said industry analyst Art Murphy of Daily Variety.

The movies that turned around an 18-month industry recession generally began appearing in late June, bringing a dramatic upward curve in ticket-buying, he said.

Paramount and Disney's Buena Vista studios had a jump on the gun, and reaped rewards accordingly.

Besides "Top Gun" and "Dundee," Paramount also had "Ferris Bueller's Day Off" and "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home" in the year's Top 10 grossing films, according to a 51-week compilation of best sellers in the Hollywood Reporter.

The other films in the Top 10 year were "Out of Africa" from Universal, "Aliens" from 20th Century-Fox and "Ruthless People" from Disney.

Paramount had a 22.2 percent share of the market, followed by Warner Bros. with 11 percent, Disney with 10.1 percent, Columbia with 9.5 percent, Universal with 8.5 percent, 20th Century-Fox with 8.1 percent, Tri-Star with 7.1 percent, Orion with 7 percent, MGM-UA with 4.4 percent and Cannon with 2.7 percent.

MGM-UA, torn apart and rejoined in a series of takeover and re-sell deals between broadcast magnate Ted Turner and financier Kirk Kerkorian, suffered the worst of the old-line studios, with production virtually at a standstill.

Studio musical chairs played favorably for both Paramount and Disney.

"In Paramount's case, there was a management change in the fall of 1984, before the recession began," Murphy said. "With their new studio management, which had nothing to do with the recession of 1985 and the first half of 1986, ... and so "Pretty in Pink" arrived in February of this year. Paramount was in a position to have newer films on the market earlier."

Among the people who left Paramount in 1984 was Michael Eisner, now the head of the Disney studios.

"'Down and Out in Beverly Hills' came out in late January of last year, and that was the first big hit of 1986," said Murphy. "Disney and Paramount, from a fresh production point of view, were in the game a little earlier."

Murphy said recessions in the movie industry, usually brought on by a cycle of success spawning wasteful productions and shoddy imitations of moneymakers, generally last 18 months. That's about how long it takes studios to get a film on the screen.

Studios to watch in 1987 include Columbia, where new chief David Puttnam's promise of quality over quantity will come to fruition by either the summer or fall, and MGM-UA, which should begin turning out movies again sometime this summer.

The top-grossing year of all time was $4.03 billion in 1984, followed now by 1986 with $3.8 billion and 1983 with $3.77 billion.

For the weekend just passed, "The Golden Child" earned $6.6 million for Paramount to hold the top spot for the fourth consecutive weekend.

"Star Trek IV" sold $6.2 million worth of tickets to stay No. 2. In just six weeks, the movie has landed $81.3 million.

"'Crocodile' Dundee" remained in third place with $4.7 million in weekend grosses. After 15 weeks in U.S. release, the Australian show has put $122.9 million in American money in the till for Paramount, which again fielded the week's top three movies.

Disney's re-issued "Lady and the Tramp," was the fourth-highest earner with $4.5 million. The film was eighth in earnings last weekend.

Moving up two places to fifth, with $4 million, was "Little Shop of Horrors."

U.S. Film Festival on tap in Park City

TWIN FALLS — Quiet in the theaters. Action!

American films have the spotlight when the United States Film Festival starts next Friday, Jan. 16, at Park City, Utah, and continues until Jan. 25.

Besides an abundance of films, premieres and seminars on subjects ranging from acting to making a movie deal, the festival sponsors the Independent Film Competition.

Among the judges for the event are Newsweek film critic David Ansen and Randa Haines, director of "Children of a Lesser God."

The festival is presented by the Sundance Institute in cooperation with the State of Utah Film Development Office. The institute, started by actor-director Robert Redford, is dedicated to fostering American independent filmmaking.

Fonda, Bridges, Julia are superb in Lumet's 'The Morning After'

Reels
Movie reviews

TWIN FALLS — Following are capsule reviews of movies currently playing in the Magic Valley. Ratings are by the Motion Picture Association of America and the Los Angeles Times. Opinions are by Los Angeles Times reviewers.

THE MORNING AFTER (R). This thriller — in which an over-the-hill alcoholic movie star wakes-up next to a corpse and is plunged into a nightmare of fear, pursuit and deceptive appearances — depends for its tension more on intimate psychology than "Grand Guignol." And director Sidney Lumet and leads Jane Fonda, Jeff Bridges and Raul Julia do not disappoint you on that score: They have mined all the depths, plumbed all the emotions. But, all too often, Lumet and his cast here seem like superb musicians whose technique is far too brilliant for the thin piece they are playing.

CROCODILE DUNDEE (PG-13). The sunny, reassuring personality of Paul Hogan (the fellow who says "G'day" in the Australian tourism ads) is at the heart of this movie — which he designed and co-wrote for himself. It is more than enough to carry it: a "fish out of water" story, with Hogan as adventurer-hunter Dundee, wooing Linda Koslowski's inquisitive Newsday reporter in the Aussie outback, and then in the wilds of Manhattan itself. "Dundee" is really nothing more than a pleasant, amiable, good-natured crowd-pleaser, but it is hard to think of many crowds it could not somehow please.

FIREWALKER (PG). Lively, lighthearted adventure that deftly moves Chuck Norris away from the ultra-violent "Rambo" mold and into the tongue-in-cheekery of "Raiders of the Lost Ark" and "Romancing the Stone." While not as sophisticated as those two films, "Firewalker, " thanks to J. Lee Thompson's astute direction, is lots of fun. Norris and Louis Gossett Jr. play soldiers of fortune in pursuit of Mayan gold. With Melody Anderson.

THE GOLDEN CHILD (PG-13). High in the wind-lashed mountains of Tibet sits the Golden Child — whom many believe is the true, perfect soul humanity has long awaited — surrounded by Evil Forces: heinous killers, slavering brutes, vile demons surging up from the bowels of Hell. Will he survive? Oh, sure. And deep in your own local movie house lies "The Golden Child," which many believed would be the great new Eddie Murphy comedy we have long awaited. It is beset by even more Evil Forces: heinous scripting, slavering special effects, vile cliches surging up from the bowels of Hollywood. Can it survive? Nope.

HEARTBREAK RIDGE (R). The material here is thin, thin, thin — has the notion of a not-ready-for-prime-directives combat platoon uniting before the Big Battle lasted this long already? — but director-producer-star Clint Eastwood, his trademark growl reduced to a near-inaudible purring rumble, turns in a vintage performance that occasionally tranfuses the film's anemia.

THREE AMIGOS (PG). There is hardly a moment here that is not silly — make that incredibly, outrageously and breathtakingly silly. Maybe that is why this tale of a trio of inept silent-movie stars (Chevy Chase, Steve Martin, Martin Short) turned real-life heroes is such a goofy delight. It is like a cross between a big-budget Three Stooges movie and a Hope-Crosby road picture, with dozens of old cowpoke gags thrown in to spice up the brew. Nothing is real, not even the poster-board sunsets. And it is this giddy artifice that gives this wacky Western charade a delightfully fresh spin.

Spoofing seriousness not easy for 'Sledge Hammer!' character

By DENISE GORGA

"That's what I hate about newspapers in this country. They find out things — and then they print them. Freedom of the press — it stinks!"

Those are the sentiments of Sledge Hammer, the wacky lead in ABC's sendup of urban crime-fighters. But David Rasche, the man behind these words, is not as vehement toward the First Amendment.

Sledge Hammer the character is a hybrid of the urbane Agent 86 on "Get Smart" and the machete-swinging, armory-toting Rambo. "Sledge Hammer!" the series (7:30 p.m. Saturday KIVI) spoofs all the well-intentioned cop shows and vigilante flicks whose good guys whup the bad guys without examining too closely their bullet outtakes. Sledge's tie and sports coat combinations which defy quantum optics are very much intentional: "If people go, 'Ooooff' that's good," says Rasche. In between bullet sprays, the bug-eyed detective whispers sweet nothings to "Gun," his .44 Magnum ("I wish it was bigger") and drives a bullet-encrusted Plymouth ("It makes sense, doesn't it?").

It's difficult to spoof the serious, admits 42-year-old Rasche. "The joke is that Dirty Harry would blow up the whole building, except that you're actually doing it. That's the thin line we walk. How do you make fun of it without doing it? How do you spoof violence without being violent?"

Considering Rasche's background as a former divinity student and college teacher, one might ask how his career managed to reconcile hymnals with criminals.

"I really don't have a master's degree from divinity school," admits Rasche. "I'm two papers short. But I thought that was almost." He continues: "I went to divinity school in the '60s, so I think my interest was more in terms of social reform. In order to be a man of the cloth, you have to be pretty committed."

Rasche's '60s teaching career petered out as well. "I brought in Judy Collins records. My comrades were constantly reading and keeping up with the latest T.S. Eliot research, and in general I wasn't doing it."

Sermons and schoolbooks aside, ABC's recent decision to move "Sledge Hammer!" to a Saturday-night berth is sure to keep Rasche's acting career going. (Previously the detective spoof premiered alongside double-barrelled, Friday-night competition, losing viewers to "Miami Vice" dope and "Dallas" soap.)

Rogers delivers on friendly image

BY ROBIN ADAMS SLOAN

Q. Kenny Rogers seems like such a genial guy all the time. How does he keep so good-natured? — Y.T.

A. Kenny's fans expect him to play a bit of the good-ole-boy as well as sing middle-of-the-road song favorites. For the most part, the 48-year-old singer-actor delivers like the slick pro he is. But don't push him. A Chicago disc jockey did recently, and the result almost got a bit hairy. The jock called Rogers' hotel early one morning as part of a "celebrity wake-up service." Kenny answered the phone after just three hours of sleep. He almost growled at the deejay, but apparently thought better of it and calmed down, didn't hang up and wound up chatting with listeners.

Patient telephone manner

Q. Can you tell us if Madonna is about to divorce Sean Penn or is the couple salvaging their shaky marriage? — D.P.

A. Hollywood insiders are divided on the subject. One gossipy source has the couple's marriage on the ropes since the two do seem to have their share of personal problems. However, I don't believe they're about to split. I saw the couple not too long ago at a private film colony party behaving like giddy

MADONNA CICCONE

SEAN PENN

Speculation as to marriage split between singer, actor

Q. Whatever happened to Mary Kay Place, who played country-western singer Loretta Haggers so terrifically in that funny TV show some years back, "Mary Hartman, Mary Hartman"? — M.G.

A. An accomplished singer who has appeared at the famed Grand Ole Opry, Mary Kay has recorded three albums as well as written and acted in TV and movies. Her next big screen appearance will be in "Baby Boom," United Artists' new comedy about Yuppie life. She will portray Diane Keaton's best friend, legal advisor and confidante.

Q. Everything Michael Jackson touches seems to turn to money. Do you know what he's getting into next? — F.N.

A. Michael's helped design and will market a new children's wear line. He has ambitions to be a big business mogul — far removed from song and dance. No problem about financing, of course, since if necessary he can raise the capital for his nonmusical enterprises by selling off to the highest bidder the worldwide commercial rights to the catalogue of Beatles songs he bought for $47,000,000.

Q. Some statistics, please, on the next James Bond epic. When will it appear, and how many films have there been? — S.E.

A. "The Living Daylights," marking the debut of debonair Timothy Dalton as 007, will world premiere in London in June. It's the 15th chapter in the most successful series in the history of motion pictures — a series so popular that the films have been seen by more than 1½ billion people — nearly one-third of the world's population. This is all the more astounding considering that none of the Bond adventures has ever been shown behind the Iron Curtain or in mainland China.

Q. Now that "Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home" has proven to be such a big movie hit, will it be shown around the world under that same famous title? — P.K.

A. Incredibly, no. Because the original TV show, "Star Trek," on which the blockbuster movie series is based, doesn't have a wide international following, the film is being released in most foreign countries as "The Voyage Home" (or a direct translation) sans the "Star Trek" tag. Only in a few cities, like Amsterdam, where the "Star Trek" identity is strong, will the full title be used when this movie is released.

Q. I just loved that action-adventure film last summer with Billy Crystal and Gregory Hines as unorthodox undercover cops. Will there be a sequel? — B.J.

A. Yes, since "Running Scared" was a big hit. At present, however, no word as to a start date for "Running Scared II." In the meantime, the talented Mr. Crystal will be co-starring with Sigourney Weaver in "Whereabouts," a new romantic comedy for MGM.

Q. Please settle an argument. I say that Mary Steenburgen is married to Roddy McDowall, the actor who came over from England as a child star, but my sister says I'm wrong. — G.K.

A. Afraid you are. The super-talented Mary is actually wed to a very similarly-named British actor, Malcolm McDowell ("Clockwork Orange," etc.). But, coincidentally, her co-star in the upcoming suspense epic "Dead of Winter" is none other than Roddy McDowall.

Q. Why is it that William Hurt always falls in love with whatever leading lady he's paired with? — J.M.

A. It does look that way. During the filming of his latest flick, "Children of a Lesser God," Hurt fell hard for his co-star and leading lady, Marlee Matlin. She played an attractive, young deaf woman, and the fact that Matlin herself is deaf proved attractive to Hurt. Their unusual romance made the columns for a while, but soon fizzled. Now both performers are pursuing their careers separately.

Q. Isn't actress Michele Lee getting a reputation as Hollywood's most available single woman? — B.S.

A. After her divorce from actor James Farentino, Michele was most certainly an "available" single. But she was hardly the swinging sort pursuing a rotating rash of hunky young men. Michele prefers the settled, mature type. That's why I wasn't surprised when she told me she'll be marrying soon (yes, she's already got the diamond on the finger). He's Fred Rappaport, a vice president of CBS-TV. I wish the couple all the best.

Q. Bill Pullman may have portrayed "the stupidest man in the world" in Bette Midler's "Ruthless People" pic — but I think he's gorgeous. When will we see him again? — V.E.

A. How about next summer? That's when Mel Brooks' new out-of-this-galaxy comedy "Spaceballs" will be opening around the universe. Evidently Mel thinks highly of Pullman's talents; he cast him as a hero for hire who roams space in — what else? — an interstellar Winnebago!

Nasty Jill Foster Abbott's return meant boost to morning ratings

By JOHN N. GOUDAS

Jill is hot again this winter. In court battling for a son she never gave a darn about, quixotic Jill Foster Abbott gives "The Young and the Restless" a few heady jolts.

It's nothing new. Whenever Jill (played by beautiful Brenda Dickson) gets her dander up, the soap regains momentum. Whether the lady sleeps with her mother's lover, cleans out husband John for 20 percent of his millions or double-crosses her best friends, "Y & R" flourishes when her character takes center stage. That's been going on since 1973 when the soap began. Brenda Dickson left the show for three years, giving Jill a rest, but when she returned, the show jumped in the ratings.

By this time fans should be tired of Jill, bored by the emotional turnarounds of this two-timing, self-absorbed, vindictive little woman who usually gets her way. When Jack shot her, cheers were expected. Wrong again. Jill got most of the sympathy.

Oddly enough, Jill Abbott fans remain loyal, rooting for the proverbial troublemaker. While her character was in the middle of divorcing wealthy John, Brenda Dickson received encouraging letters. Women were in her corner, writing "Take him for all he's got. Show no mercy."

Brenda had to laugh. The writers took their cue from the fans, and Jill Abbott walked off with a cool million or two. Now she rakes in a hefty six-figure salary at Jabot. Sitting on top of the world, Jill wants more, more, more — "a handsome chauffeur and a stunning butler," she says, fantasizing, "and a stable of men to go with my grand estate."

Brenda is delighted when fans compare Jill to Joan Collins' Alexis on "Dynasty." She believes Jill could give lessons in rottenness to Alexis, and knows she will still be around when "Dynasty" is long gone.

Brenda Dickson has no intention of leaving "Y & R" again. They will have to throw her out. "I'm planning to branch out, maybe even a miniseries," she says, "but that only means shooting here at night to fill in. I can't give up Jill. I'm having too much fun with her. Besides, it's all so easy."

Brenda Dickson, of 'The Young and the Restless,' encourages comparisons to 'Dynasty' character

CHANNEL CHATTER:

Kathryn Hays and fellow actors of "As the World Turns" — Don Hastings, Julianne Moore and Steve Bassett — recently returned from London and Venice where they filmed location scenes for the soap. One day while filming a sequence in Trafalgar Square in London, an American tourist came up to Kathryn and told her that she had instructed her daughter to tape the show while she was away. Some fans are really faithful.

PLOT PORTENTS:

Vince goes on the run with Mary's help on "Another World." Adam and M.J. fight when she won't agree to met his parents. Reginald is devastated at the news concerning Donna and Vicky decides to leave town.

Sophia doesn't know what she is in for when she takes Jeffrey on as her chauffeur on "Santa Barbara." Gina is really thrown for a loop when she realizes that Capwell Enterprises may really change hands.

Just how long can Brooke hold Jeff off remains to be seen on "All My Children." Natalie is more open than she has been in some time, especially in her obvious affection for Ross but is there trouble ahead?

Has Kim been framed for Emma's murder on "Days of Our Lives?" Kiriakis is acting very guilty but there are some revealing facts that will come to light and they may implicate many others who are now basking in their so-called innocence.

Mudd, NBC may part

By JAY SHARBUTT
Los Angeles Times

NEW YORK — Roger Mudd, who last month sharply criticized NBC for axing the low-rated "1986" news-magazine series that he co-anchored, may soon be leaving the network himself.

Mudd's agent and NBC executives have been holding talks that include discussion of a "potential buyout" of his long-term NBC News contract, according to a source close to the program on which Mudd had worked.

"It's mutual," the source said Wednesday, when asked whether Mudd or NBC had proposed a possible contract settlement that would free the strong-willed veteran newsman to seek work elsewhere.

Mudd, 58, who joined NBC in 1980 after nearly two decades at CBS News, was reported on vacation and unavailable for comment. NBC News President Lawrence Grossman declined to comment, saying Wednesday that he never discusses contract matters in public.

After he told Mudd that "1986" was being dropped, "we had a discussion about what he'll do next," Grossman said. But he declined to elaborate on that conversation. The program's last broadcast was Dec. 30.

In contrast to Mudd, his "1986" co-anchor Connie Chung and correspondent Maria Shriver already are at work on an AIDS special to be aired Tuesday night.

When NBC announced that the ax would fall on what had been its only prime-time news program, Grossman emphasized that he alone had made the decision and thought that NBC News' resources would be put to better use in documentaries.

At that time, the NBC News chief, who has 15 one-hour documentaries planned for this year, warned against blaming NBC's cost-conscious new owner, General Electric, for the cancellation of the program.

Nonetheless, Mudd — who anchored the program's predecessor, "American Almanac," and reluctantly shared the "1986" anchorship with Chung — put out an angry statement shortly after the cancellation was made public.

Nielsen ratings

CBS spoils NBC's perfect record

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC's juggernaut team went into the New Year's bowl games with an unbeaten record, but with powerhouse Bill Cosby on the sidelines, CBS pulled an upset in the television Nielsen ratings.

CBS, led by "Murder, She Wrote," deftly moved ahead of the first-place network for the week ended Jan. 4. NBC's "The Cosby Show" and the rest of the Thursday night lineup were pre-empted by football.

"It would have been nice to show up here with an 18-0 record for the season," Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC Entertainment, told reporters at the Century Plaza Hotel on Tuesday, "but 17-1 isn't bad."

CBS not only won the week in prime time but "The CBS Evening News" also took first place in the evening news shows from NBC. It was the first prime-time victory for CBS and the first defeat for NBC since the week ended Aug. 31.

NBC placed only one of its regular shows, "The Golden Girls," in the Top 10, although it did make the top ranks with three football games. CBS had four shows in the Top 10 and ABC had two.

David Poltrack, CBS vice president for research, said, "Even though NBC lost its big Thursday night schedule, football helped them."

Actually, "The Cosby Show" didn't do that well the week before. The show, which normally is first, was fifth. The show, however, was a rerun and was broadcast Christmas night.

CBS was first in the A.C. Nielsen Co. survey with a rating of 16.8. The networks say this means that in an average prime-time minute 16.8 percent of the television homes were tuned to CBS. NBC was a close second with 16.3 and ABC was third with 13.0.

"This is certainly not a trend," Tartikoff said. "From the outset we knew we would not have a perfect season. We expected to lose the week of the Super Bowl."

CBS will telecast the Super Bowl on Sunday, Jan. 25.

NBC is still far ahead for the season to date. NBC has a rating of 17.9, CBS has 15.9 and ABC 14.1.

Here are the Top 10 shows: "Murder, She Wrote," CBS; "The Golden Girls," NBC; NFL football game between Denver and New England, NBC; Fiesta Bowl football game between Penn State and Miami, NBC; "The CBS Sunday Movie" — "At Mother's Request," Part I, CBS; Rose Bowl football game between Michigan and Arizona State, NBC; "60 Minutes," CBS; "Growing Pains," ABC; "Dallas," CBS; and "Who's the Boss?" ABC.

The spillover of the Rose Bowl into prime time was sixth in the ratings, but NBC's major New Year's game on Thursday night — the Orange Bowl game between Oklahoma and Arkansas — ended up in 27th place.

CBS also dominated the second 10 shows with six. CBS' new series "Outlaws" was 17th. "The performance of 'Outlaws' is very significant in turning around our Saturday night fortunes," said Poltrack.

Here are the next 10 shows: "Moonlighting," ABC; "Amen," NBC; "Knots Landing," CBS; "My Sister Sam," CBS; "227," NBC; "Newhart," CBS; "Outlaws," CBS; "Kate & Allie," CBS; "Hunter," NBC; and "Falcon Crest," CBS.

In the ratings for the news shows, CBS had 13.7, NBC had 12.2 and ABC had 10.9.

Proposals include offbeat news

Network explores 7-day 'Today'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — NBC News plans to distribute its news programs to European hotels and cable systems beginning this year, NBC News President Lawrence K. Grossman said Monday.

The division also will test the idea of broadcasting the "Today" show on weekends, possibly add a late-night, tongue-in-cheek news show and may offer local affiliates a half-hour network news feed to be paired with local noon news, Grossman said at a news conference.

The international versions of NBC's "Nightly News," "Today," "Meet the Press" and "Sunrise" will be distributed through a newly formed joint venture among NBC, American Express and Independent Newspapers of Ireland.

Cable News Network has a similar service, but NBC is making the first foray by one of the three major commercial U.S. networks, NBC said.

The idea of seven-day-a-week "Today" broadcasts will be tested with a Sunday version to air later this year.

Grossman said CNN gets its highest ratings on Saturday mornings when it is the only television news available.

The proposed late-night, news division-produced show would follow "Late Night with David Letterman," probably once a week, Grossman said.

"Everybody is trying to do a kind of offbeat news effort except the news division, except journalists," he said. "It's been done by the Second City people, it's been done by the 'That Was the Week that Was' people, by actors, by comedians. We see an awful lot of stuff of interest in the human condition and we don't put it on the air. There's no room for it."

Grossman, who was in Los Angeles for NBC's winter press tour, said NBC "Nightly News" was No. 1 in the ratings for the final quarter of the year last year for the first time since 1967. He said NBC's No. 1 position in prime time didn't hurt, but he credited the news staff for the improvement.

"In daytime, we're a poor third still, and we have a real handicap to overcome in the lead-in," he said.

Grossman defended the decision to cancel the newsmagazine "1986," saying he thought the resources would be better used to preserve the hour-long, prime-time documentary format. NBC plans 15 such documentaries this year, and a like number in 1988, while prior to the cancellation of "1986" it had planned only four documentaries, he said. As for the news division's budget, Grossman said he was "comfortable" with the figures for next year, though he declined to say if they met NBC President Robert Wright's target of a 5 percent reduction.

The networks are facing reduced advertising revenues and Wright asked all the network divisions to try to pare their budgets. Grossman had declined to include his news division in the exercise.

Singer Frank Sinatra, left, and actor Tom Selleck on the set of Magnum-P.I. in downtown Honolulu Wednesday. Sinatra will appear as a guest star during an upcoming segment of the show.

Said to be earning some $1 million

Sawyer agrees to stick with CBS

NEW YORK (AP) — Diane Sawyer, a correspondent on CBS' top-rated "60 Minutes" news magazine, renewed her contract Dec. 29, ending speculation that she would be lured away by a rival network, officials announced.

Howard Stringer, president of CBS News, said the network was delighted to reach an agreement with Sawyer.

A source at CBS, who spoke on the condition of anonymity, said the new contract, which covers several years, gives Sawyer an annual salary "in the million (dollar) range."

CBS spokesman Ramona Dunn said that under Sawyer's previous contract, which expires at the end of the week, the newswoman had earned $800,000 each year.

She said the new agreement calls for Sawyer to continue her work with "60 Minutes" and includes "upcoming CBS projects" still in the planning stages.

Recent reports said Sawyer had been discussing job offers with other companies because she wanted an anchor slot.

Her agent, Richard Leibner, confirmed that both ABC and NBC made offers, but he declined to give specifics.

"In the end, I believe she decided to stay at CBS because of her affection for her co-workers and personal loyalty to the network," he said, refusing to discuss the new contract.

Tartikoff unveils 'Cosby' spinoff

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A spinoff of "The Cosby Show" with Lisa Bonet will be part of next fall's schedule, NBC Entertainment President Brandon Tartikoff said Tuesday.

NBC already has a completed pilot of the "Cosby" spinoff, which follows Bonet's character, the Huxtable family's second-eldest daughter Denise, to college.

At a news conference during a network press tour, Tartikoff also said the producers of "Hill Street Blues" have been asked to start thinking about an appropriate final episode, though no decision has been made to end its television run after seven years.

"Hill Street," long rumored to be in its final season, was moved earlier this season from its longtime Thursday night time slot to Tuesday opposite ABC's hit "Moonlighting."

Tartikoff said the series would probably be moved to an hour later, at 9 p.m. MST, beginning in March, with seven episodes left in the season.

Tartikoff said he was excited about the prospect of "some new life, new variables and new dynamics" on the network's popular Thursday night sitcom "Cheers." One of two top-billed stars on the series, Shelley Long, has announced she's leaving after this season.

"The Tortellis," a "Cheers" spinoff about waitress Carla's ne'er-do-well ex-husband and his wife, played respectively by Dan Hedaya and Jean Kasem, will join the schedule Jan. 22.

He also said the network was happy with the ratings performance of "St. Elsewhere" and expected it to continue for another season.

Another addition next year will be a series developed by "A Team" creator Stephen J. Cannell, "J.J. Starbuck," starring Dale Robertson as an eccentric Texas oilman who amuses himself by trying to fix other people's problems.

Other replacement series announced by the network include "Rags to Riches," a musical-comedy-drama set in the early 1960s, starring Joseph Bologna, and "Sweet Surrender."

Series criticized by both sides of political fence

ABC's 'Amerika' has detractors

By ROBERT BARR
The Associated Press

A woman marches with banner displaying portraits of Vladimar Lenin, Abraham Lincoln during 'Amerika'

LINCOLN, Neb. — The Soviets hated it and activists have sniped from right and left, but the people of Tecumseh have taken a shine to "Amerika."

They were especially charmed by their own performances in ABC's controversial 14½-hour drama.

"I thought it was great," said Marion Beethe, one of about about 500 Tecumseh residents who made the one-hour drive north to the state capital for a pair of four-hour "world premiere" showings Monday. "I'm really looking forward to seeing the ending. I think I might be in it."

"I could have sat there the rest of the night," said Jody Forke, who worked 11 hours as an extra when "Amerika" invaded Tecumseh last April.

She was delighted to see her 18-year-old sons James and Jaye playing soldiers, just as her neighbors happily nudged each other as they caught glimpses of themselves marching, standing in food lines or hovering in backgrounds.

Whether the rest of the country will embrace "Amerika" so warmly is a question of considerable interest to ABC, which sank more than $35 million into the series, and to the network's detractors.

The Soviet government denounced the series even before filming began, and threatened to restrict ABC's news operation in Moscow. The United Nations objected to the fictional occupation forces' use of the U.N. flag.

A Soviet correspondent who watched the premiere called the film Cold War propaganda.

"I don't like this film at all," said Edgar Cheporov, a writer with Novosti Press Agency who is based in New York. He called "Amerika" a potential wedge between the Soviet Union and the United States.

The Committee for National Security, a Washington-based organization which lobbies for arms control, last month called the series "boring, politically insulting and an obstacle to public understanding of real-world complexities."

Todd Gitlin, a sociology professor at the University of California at Berkley and author of "Inside Prime Time," wrote in the liberal Jewish quarterly Tikkun that the show was "the most coherent, explicit and extended right-wing vision of the world to be seen in American TV."

However, Reed Irvine of conservative Accuracy in Media also pronounced "Amerika" a bore after seeing a sneak preview in Washington. Newsweek, in a November article, said the show has enough sex to satisfy "connoisseurs of the prime-time soaps (not to mention Nazi-bondage porn)."

On the day of the show's premiere in Lincoln, The New York Times published a critical letter by George F. Kennan, the distinguished foreign policy expert who fathered the post-war U.S. policy of containment. He called it "a serious disservice to the clarity of public understanding on issues of vital importance."

All this for a drama which is still being edited, according to Donald Wrye, the writer, director and executive producer.

"I don't think bad publicity is good for the film," Wrye told reporters. "I think we are at a disadvantage now because the film has a very hard time speaking for itself."

Although no one has seen the finished product, and only Nebraskans have seen as much as four hours, bootlegged copies of the script have been circulating, as well as videotapes of 90 minutes or less.

Wrye insisted that "Amerika" is not about the likelihood of a Soviet conquest, but is a fictional exploration of life in a totalitarian system.

"There is so much use of the film to push individual agendas," he complained.

Brandon Stoddard, president of ABC Entertainment, likewise dismissed the value of negative publicity.

"I'm real glad we're getting around to the audience," he said. "I feel they've got a real good sense

about these kinds of shows. We're getting near some friends."

The audience, however, has not been markedly friendly this season as ABC has lagged in third place. Stoddard, who conceived and commissioned "Amerika," declined to predict how it would fare.

"If it doesn't work, life will go on," he said in an interview. "I will go on and continue at ABC. I don't think this is make or break time."

About half the series was filmed in Tecumseh, a county seat of about 2,000 residents. A lordly Victorian courthouse comprises a one-building skyline in the business district.

Carol Honblez, who wore a crimson "I was in Amerika" T-shirt and played an exiled dissident, said she found the film true to life.

"If it were really life, I'd be in that situation" as an exile, she said, explaining that she had been a philosophy major in college.

"It wasn't quite what I thought," said Susan Lempka of Tecumseh. "Everybody was talking about the politics involved. I thought there would be more."

"It's kind of a stark, really, of what maybe could happen," said Sarah Adams, a Lincoln pharmacist. "If anything, it made me feel more patriotic."

Meter could change emphasis of TV

Commentary

By MIKE HENDERSON
The Everett Herald

Among my predictions last year at this time was the one about how VCRs soon would be given away as cereal-box premiums. This did not happen in 1986, not, anyway, in the brands of cereal I buy. It may, however, come to pass this year, assuming the size and — more important — price of the wondrous video machine continue to shrink the way of the pocket calculators of yore.

Commercial television executives, of course, are more than a little concerned about the toll videocassette technology is taking in the way of audience erosion. Where CBS, NBC and ABC once had only to worry about competition from local independents showing "Baretta" reruns, now the networks live with the reality of cable stations and ever-encroaching home-video in addition to the local independents.

Some fear that means that the network programming potentates will place increasing importance on lowest common-denominator drivel in order to keep ratings high enough to attract the car and cat-food advertisers. Others, however, find an ironic silver lining surrounding what is certain to be the way of the video-habit future.

The silver lining is in the form of the People Meter, a gauge destined to become an important part of the mass-media lives of Americans. Starting this year, the Nielsen folks will commence collecting ratings information via an in-home gadget that accurately keeps track of precisely what a family watched.

The gauge is, by all accounts (the networks, the local affiliates, Nielsen operatives, advertisers, etc.), a considerable improvement over the former, fallible log-book method of recording data. Under the old system, Nielsen placed books in homes and left it up to the hosts to remember whether the rec-room color portable was showing the national news or "The Brady Bunch" last Monday afternoon at 5.

But the People Meter will change all that. More important: It may very well alter the emphasis of commercial television. Rather, that is, than a network hustling to bury the competition in ratings numbers, emphasis will be placed on demographics. Example:

Let's say that only 6 percent of America watches "Our World" Thursdays. The vast majority of the audience at that hour is tuned to "The Cosby Show." Under the old rules of ratings war, ABC would be obliged to abandon "Our World" in hopes of finding stronger competition against "Cosby." The results: (a) a darned good program would be canceled; (b) a loyal 6 percent of the audience would be forsaken.

Under the People Meter rules, however, a highly accurate demographic-composite portrait of that 6 percent of "Our World" devotees would emerge. The network then would be able to shop the composite to appropriate advertisers, who could be reasonably assured they were reaching precisely the audience of their dreams. The "Our World" budget, then, could be allotted proportionate to revenue so that a profit would be assured for ABC. "Our World" no longer would be competing with "The Cosby Show." With its audience assured, the only competition for a given program would be the continuing challenge to pursue excellence.

Can the People Meter really accomplish all that? Marvin Mord, chief executive for research at ABC, seems to think so.
